Civilians Mowed Down After Blast in Saigon

SAIGON (CP)—Six South Vietnamese civilians were shot and killed in Saigon today when a Viet Cong mine explosion triggered a half-hour barrage of machine-gun fire by American military policemen.

Five of them — four women and a child — were killed in the street along which the shooting took place. Two of the women died when Americans pumped bullets into an open truck carrying dock workers.

The sixth was shot in hospital where he was visiting a friend. Hospital officials said a large number of bullets entered the hospital but no one else was hit.

Twenty-one South Vietnamese and eight Americans were wounded in the barrage.

The incident began when a claymore anti-personnel mine exploded and blew in the glass front of the Suxie Wong tailor store.

A spokesman said a man was seen jumping into a taxi as the mine exploded. An American policeman fired at the taxi, starting a chain reaction of shooting along the street where other Americans guarded U.S. billets. One American guard saw a truck moving toward him, carrying a gang of dock workers.

He fired into it, and a jeep-mounted American machine-gun then opened up on the truck. The truck tried to reverse but was blocked by a U.S. military bus travelling behind it. The machine-gun burst tore into the bus, too, injuring the South Vietnamese driver and at least one American serviceman.

PREGNANT WOMAN SHOT HUDDLED ON PAVEMENT

SAIGON (AP) — A pregnant South Vietnamese woman, described from her hospital bed tonight the terror and confusion she and other civilians experienced when U.S. machine-gun bullets ripped into their truck and left some bleeding in a rail-spattered Saigon street.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Thom, 23, mother of two children, told how she and two dozen other employees of a construction firm were riding to work this morning when a Viet Cong mine exploded and U.S. sentries started shooting.

The truck halted at an intersection near the Brink Hotel, a big U.S. military billet in downtown Saigon, she said.

As the shooting erupted, workers panicked, Mrs. Thom said. Some scrambled from the truck, some ran, others tried to hide beneath the vehicle.

Bullets tore into the metal and bounced off the rain-wet street.

A tracer round hit Mrs. Thom in the side as she huddled on the pavement. She lay there nearly 30 minutes, until an American officer carried her to a doorway. She was taken to hospital later.

GUNS VISIBLE
The woman said she did not see anyone shooting, but did see many American soldiers with guns.

Mrs. Thom was one of 12 South Vietnamese wounded taken to Saigon city hospital.

New Quakes At Tashkent

MOSCOW (UPI)—A series of earthquakes rocked the ancient city of Tashkent again today, sending residents and tourists running into the streets as houses weakened in a quake exactly two weeks ago came tumbling down.

There were some casualties reported but the accounts gave no precise toll of the injured and made no mention of fatalities.

One of them had been hurt by the mine explosion; the others were hit by bullets.

Mrs. Le Thi Dan, 42, mother of five boys and one girl, said she huddled with several others in the back of the construction workers' truck.

Bullets killed two women alongside her and wounded her three times—in the left ear, behind her right shoulder, and in the lower back.

Le Van Sam, 48, father of eight children, was driving another truck filled with textile workers, when he heard the shooting. He stopped the vehicle three blocks from the scene. As he climbed from the truck cab, he was sent spinning by a bullet that broke his right arm.

A taxi driver, Nguyen Viet Tan, 46, said he heard a blast like thunder and a flash like lightning. Then came more flashes and a bullet ripped through a door of his taxi and into his hip. He drove home operating the gas pedal with his hand, he said.

Lawyers Grill Sevigny On Gerda Relationship

Fourth Visitor During Evening

OTTAWA (CP)—J. L. O'Brien, chief commission counsel, said today at the Munsinger security inquiry that Pierre Sevigny was the fourth male visitor to Gerda Munsinger's apartment on the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960, and that the first three paid a fee.

Mr. Sevigny, former Conservative associate defence minister, said he learned this only recently.

He repeated that the only reason he had seen the German blonde that night was that he had been asked to see her by a mutual friend, Jacqueline Delorme.

Mr. O'Brien said Mrs. Munsinger "suggested that you come up and continue what you call an intimate relationship."

Mr. Sevigny said he had called her from a restaurant but could not recall the exact conversation.

"She was quite gay on the telephone," Sevigny said. "She said she wanted to see me."

Mr. O'Brien said that when Mrs. Munsinger was supposed to have been destitute she had gone with a man to Western Canada.

He asked whether Mr. Sevigny now knew that Mrs. Munsinger was a prostitute.

Mr. Sevigny replied that information he now has indicates that Mrs. Munsinger resorted to prostitution during her last weeks in Canada "in order to live when her back was to the wall."

He said he didn't know at the time that she was resorting to prostitution.

Mr. O'Brien asked whether Mr. Sevigny now is aware that Mrs. Munsinger took another trip with another man to Switzerland for Christmas.

Jules Dupre, Mr. Sevigny's lawyer, objected that he never saw any such statement in the documents supplied to the commission nor had he seen anything to show that Mrs. Munsinger actually took the western trip. The subject was dropped there.

Didn't Deny Physical Relationship

In earlier testimony, Mr. Sevigny said he fell asleep in Mrs. Munsinger's apartment early the morning of Nov. 27, 1960, and left to take the train to Ottawa upon awakening.

He said he never denied at a December, 1960, interview with then prime minister Diefenbaker "that I had had a physical relationship" with Mrs. Munsinger.

He testified that the interview, at which former justice minister Davie Fulton was present, never got into the question of whether he had an illicit sexual relationship.

The German blonde, now living in Munich, has been described in RCMP reports as having been a security risk, a common prostitute and the mistress of Mr. Sevigny.

RCMP reports to Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker had implied "I'd been intimate with her," said the former associate defence minister.

Under cross-examination by Jack Campbell, counsel for Justice Minister Cardin, Mr. Sevigny said he understood that to mean "That we had been close... as close as a man can be to a woman."

Mr. Campbell asked whether that carried the implication of sexual relations.

"I suppose it had," Mr. Sevigny said.

He maintained that he told Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker that the situation between him and Mrs. Munsinger was not such as the RCMP described.

Mr. Campbell said Mr. Fulton had testified that Mr. Sevigny denied any improper relationship.

"That is right, I denied it," said Mr. Sevigny.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, presiding at the inquiry, said Mr. Fulton had told the inquiry that Mr. Sevigny denied having sexual relations.

"Did you?" he asked Mr. Sevigny.

"I never denied at that interview that I had had a physical relationship."

The questioning on this point followed efforts by Mr. Campbell to have Mr. Sevigny say whether he ever had sexual intercourse with Mrs. Munsinger.

Dupre objected that this question was beyond the inquiry's scope. The important point was

New York Market Rebounds

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rebounded strongly in heavy trading today from Monday's steep loss.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.46 points to 896.26. It had been ahead 12.03 an hour earlier.

It was a reversal from Monday's action, which saw the Dow Jones average plunge 16.03 points in the worst loss since the assassination of President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

The advance was broad-based with blue chips gaining $1 to $2 a share and gains by high-flying issues running up to $5. Some profit-taking late in the day cut the gains.

Some brokers described the rally as a technical snapback from the sharp losses of Monday and last week.

Mao Greets Albanian Premier Shehu

Picture Shows Mao Not Dead

TOKYO (UPI)—China broadcast a photograph of a smiling Mao Tse-Tung it said was taken today as he bade farewell to a visiting Albanian delegation. The public appearance, his first in six months, ended speculation Mao was seriously ill or dead.

The New China news agency broadcast an earlier report that Mao had met the Albanians and followed this up with a radio photograph showing Mao in the traditional high collared Chinese uniform standing straight alongside his guest, Premier Mehmet Shehu of Albania.

Peking was hazy on details of Mao's public appearance but it appeared to be at a farewell banquet for the Albanians. Another New China broadcast said Premier Chou En-Lai spoke today at a "farewell banquet" for the visitors.

CHINESE SEE A-BOMB BAN

(See also page 3)

PEKING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-Lai pledged today that China never will use nuclear weapons to blackmail others. China's purpose in developing nuclear weapons was defence and its ultimate aim was the elimination of nuclear weapons, he told a farewell banquet for a visiting Albanian government delegation, the New China news agency reported.

He said his efforts to ban atomic weapons had been blocked by the U.S. and Russia.

The Chinese leader gave no details about the explosion Monday of China's third nuclear device, which the Chinese said contained thermonuclear material.

He said the test was an important contribution to China's security and world peace.

Chou declared:

"China is developing nuclear weapons, but she absolutely will not place blind faith in them."

"We will never submit to the nuclear blackmail of anyone, nor will we ever use nuclear weapons to blackmail others."

He said China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons.

CRITICIZES RUSSIA

"We are deeply convinced that a nuclear war can be prevented and nuclear weapons can be completely banned, provided that all the peace-loving people and countries work together and persevere in struggle," Chou said.

He accused both the Soviet Union and the United States of nuclear blackmail.

He attacked the Soviet "revisionist" leaders for seeking a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons in collusion with U.S. imperialism.

He said the aim of Russia and the U.S. was to maintain their nuclear monopoly, intimidate oppressed countries and peoples and realize their dream of world domination through Soviet-U.S. collaboration.

"In these circumstances, China cannot but conduct necessary and limited nuclear tests to develop nuclear weapons," he said.

CAIRO CHEERS U.S.S.R. PREMIER

CAIRO (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived here today to begin an eight-day official visit aimed at bolstering Russian influence in the troubled Middle East and received a tumultuous welcome from thousands of cheering Egyptians.

Placard-waving crowds gave Kosygin a wild ovation as he stepped from his IL 18 turboprop airliner and was greeted by President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The Soviet leader was accompanied by a 30-member Russian delegation.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev flew secretly to Bucharest today accompanied by a Soviet specialist on Chinese affairs. There was a strong possibility Brezhnev would meet with Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai in the Romanian capital, reliable sources said.

Word of Brezhnev's secret mission leaked out as Romanian sources in Belgrade revealed that Chou also was going to Bucharest "in the next few days." But while Soviet officials would not admit Brezhnev's departure, other sources said the Kremlin chief left Moscow early this morning.

Reliable Communist sources said Brezhnev was accompanied by Konstantin Ruskov, identified as a leading Chinese affairs expert.

Ruskov accompanied politburo member Alexander Sholepin to Hanoi last January and met Chou when the Peking leader visited Moscow in 1964. Ruskov is a former ambassador to Mongolia and is a Soviet liaison with all communist bloc countries.

The sources said Brezhnev planned to spend two or three days in Bucharest.

Liner Still Aground

FLUSHING, The Netherlands (Reuters)—Six tugs today failed in a first attempt to refloat the 27,002-ton liner Capetown Castle which ran aground on a sandbank near here early today.

The Dutch agent of the Union Castle Line said there were 250 passengers and 300 crew members aboard. No injuries were reported.

AMERICANS PLANNING TO STALL TALKS?

MPs Back Salmon Retaliation Against U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—The common fisheries committee today endorsed the Canadian government's threat of retaliation if Alaskan fishermen do not withdraw from high seas netting operations that take Canadian salmon.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the firm stand taken by the Canadian delegation at meetings here last month merits the strongest support.

"The Americans told us to go to blazes when we first asked them to withdraw their netting limits," he said.

Dr. R. R. Logie, assistant deputy fisheries minister, told the committee that the Canadian and American delegations have agreed to another meeting in Seattle May 17 to renegotiate the netting limits originally agreed on in 1957.

He said there has been no official indication that the U.S. government will seek to postpone or adjourn the meeting.

Mr. Howard, however, repeated a charge that Alaskan fishing interests are putting on pressure to have the meeting delayed until the salmon season has ended.

"The Americans have been dragging their feet on this issue for years," he added.

The dispute centres on the interception of Canadian-bound salmon by U.S. netting along the Alaskan Panhandle. The limits of U.S. netting are three miles farther to sea than the line agreed upon by the two countries in 1957.

Canada has threatened to let its fishermen push their netting lines farther to sea and intercept salmon bound for Alaskan rivers. Object of the original agreement was to discourage high seas netting.

The committee approved, in amended form, a motion submitted by Mr. Howard which backed the Canadian stand on the issue.

But it dropped a clause that criticized U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson for threatening to curtail the import of Canadian fishing products over a dispute about sharing the Fraser River salmon catch.

David Groos (L—Victoria, B.C.) said the clause would give the senator's remarks an aura of respectability they do not deserve.

Mr. Howard agreed.

Chairman Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said he suspects that the senator's threat was made chiefly to win attention in his home state of Washington.

After all this, Canada's goin' t' hev th' quietest, straight-an-narrow-path-followin' bunch of politicians y' ever saw.

MOVE STUDIED IN VANCOUVER

Arbitration to End Strike?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Moves were afoot today to end the strike of 1,500 Vancouver civic outside workers through compulsory arbitration.

Council will consider a proposal for binding arbitration by a Supreme Court judge to be named by the union.

Alderman Tom Campbell said he will ask council to put the offer in writing after receiving an undertaking from Jack Phillips, secretary of the union, to put such a written proposal to the membership of the union.

But Mr. Phillips, while promising to put the proposal to the membership, added a sour note, saying: "The union executive will fight to the last man to have the membership reject binding arbitration."

Meanwhile, city council was expected to ease restrictions on public disposal of garbage. The strike has halted garbage collections as well as gravedigging, care of parks and playgrounds and has seen the closing of restaurants, refreshment stands and the Stanley Park zoo. The animals are still being cared for, however.

PICKETS REAPPEAR Most council members expressed the opinion the strike may be a long one as some 200 pickets appeared this morning — for the second day — at city hall.

Monday they handed out leaflets to some 500 city hall workers — members of the civic inside workers union who have already signed an agreement with the city — suggesting they consult "your conscience" as to whether they should cross the picket line. City officials said all but about 50 did cross and came to work.

Council is expected to approve temporary withdrawal of a fee for private dumping of garbage at the city dump and to relax air pollution regulations to permit people to burn garbage in backyard incinerators.

Council has already inserted newspaper advertisements advising residents to dispose of as much garbage as possible in this manner.

The union said before the strike it was prepared to negotiate around the 40 cents recommended in a minority report by Teamsters' Union president Ed Lawson. Now it has reverted to its original demand for 70 cents in a two of three-year contract.

The city's final offer was for 28½ cents on the present base more than the amount recommended in the conciliation board's majority report.

LAWYERS GRILL SEVIGNY

what action Mr. Diefenbaker took on RCMP reports stating that Mrs. Munsinger was Mr. Sevigny's mistress.

Mr. Dupre recalled Mr. Sevigny's testimony Monday denying that Mrs. Munsinger was his mistress.

He maintained that the RCMP had only Mrs. Munsinger's statements on this question.

Mr. Justice Spence intervened twice to say that Mr. Dupre was in error; the police had other means of information than Mrs. Munsinger's statements.

Mr. Campbell said the point is important because it involves Mr. Sevigny's credibility since he had stated Mrs. Munsinger was not his mistress.

Mr. Justice Spence said that Mr. Sevigny's denial was "very narrowly framed." Mr. Sevigny had defined mistress as a woman kept by a man.

'Answer Indicative'

"The very answer itself was indicative," Mr. Justice Spence said. "I'm prepared to write in the rest of the inference without you saying it."

The judge instructed Mr. Campbell to examine Mr. Sevigny on what the former Conservative minister had told Mr. Diefenbaker on this point.

Mr. Sevigny then said that the word "mistress" was not used at the interview with Mr. Diefenbaker, nor had the words "illicit" and "sexual" been used.

Earlier, Mr. Sevigny testified that he gave Mrs. Munsinger a ring, bought for $5 in Mexico, when he was having drinks with her and two of her friends in October, 1960. It was in Ottawa's Chateau Laurier.

Mr. Sevigny said he wanted to put straight an incident which had caused a lot of "tumult and noise."

He said that when he had been in Mexico earlier he had bought 10 or 15 rings and other trinkets to give to his secretaries and other members of his staff.

It was a habit of his to make such gifts, he said.

When he was with Mrs. Munsinger at the Chateau, "I picked the ring out of my pocket—I had paid $5 for it—and gave it to her."

He added that Miss Jacqueline Delorme now had the ring because Mrs. Munsinger had given it to her.

Miss Delorme, a friend of Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger, was listening to the inquiry testimony.

Went to Boston

Mr. Sevigny also said he went to the dog races in Boston with Mrs. Munsinger in September, 1959.

He said Mrs. Munsinger had been invited to the races by a friend of his and they had gone to Boston in a private plane.

Mr. Sevigny said Mrs. Munsinger had never travelled in a government plane. He branded as a "lie" reports that she had travelled in an official plane with him to Boston.

At one point under cross-examination by Mr. Campbell, Mr. Sevigny said:

"All this happened so long ago and should never have been brought up in the first place."

At another point, Mr. Justice Spence, conducting the inquiry, said Mrs. Munsinger was an experienced traveller who had been to the United States among other places.

RCMP reports submitted to the inquiry had stated that Mrs. Munsinger was denied entry to the U.S. in 1953 on security grounds.

Mr. Campbell suggested that the reason Mr. Sevigny went to Montreal Nov. 26, 1960, was something to do with a "forged cheque."

"Not quite," Mr. Sevigny replied. He said a former associate had been forced into bankruptcy, causing great concern to him because of money owed him (Mr. Sevigny).

He said certain cheques had been made out "that were not good." He agreed with Mr. Campbell that it involved him in a certain personal liability.

Mr. Sevigny said he talked to Mrs. Munsinger about it when he went to her apartment after midnight, the night on which he testified Monday he stayed in the apartment until the next morning.

Distressed, Worried

Mr. Sevigny said he told Mrs. Munsinger he was distressed and worried.

Mr. Campbell suggested it seemed extraordinary for Mr. Sevigny to tell his personal problems to a woman whom he had decided to stop associating with 11 months previously because she used his name and talked too much.

"No, it does not," Mr. Sevigny replied. "I did not go into detail."

Mr. Campbell asked Mr. Sevigny three times whether it didn't seem extraordinary for him to give Mrs. Munsinger a ring after trying to end the association. He said Mr. Sevigny must have been aware that Mrs. Munsinger would tell her friends Mr. Sevigny made her the gift.

Mr. Sevigny went into long explanations of the gift, which he called "a ring of no consequence."

He said it is his habit to give small gifts to his staff, women in his political organization and acquaintances when he returns from trips abroad.

"I see absolutely no reason why you should see anything strange in this," Mr. Sevigny said.

Mr. Justice Spence instructed Mr. Sevigny to confine himself to replying to the questions and to stop making speeches.

"Yes, sir," Mr. Sevigny replied.

Youth Fined $100 For Hubcap Theft

A youth who didn't own a car but stole six hubcaps valued at $25 was fined $100 in central court today.

Brian Roach of Lake Cowichan pleaded guilty at a previous hearing to stealing hubcaps from two cars parked behind Esquimalt Sports Centre.

He was fined $30 on each count.

Mr. Sevigny was again questioned about the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960, part of which he spent in Mrs. Munsinger's apartment.

Mr. Campbell asked whether it was not very inconsiderate of Mr. Sevigny to fall asleep in the apartment of a "single lady of distinction."

'Not Very Romantic'

Mr. Sevigny said he was tired, under personal strain and had dined "wisely but not too well."

He had dozed off and then wakened up about 4:30 a.m. sitting in a chair. He had stayed in the chair and later called a taxi to take him to the Ottawa train.

It's not very romantic but that's the way it was," he said.

Mr. Campbell asked why he hadn't left at 4:30 a.m.

Mr. Sevigny said it is difficult to pass judgment on people when they are tired. Besides, a taxi wasn't easily available at that hour.

Mr. Campbell asked whether Mr. Sevigny had checked the diary of Miss Delorme to find out when the latter had called him about the RCMP visiting Mrs. Munsinger.

"I'm not in the habit of consulting ladies' records," Mr. Sevigny snapped.

Later, Mr. Sevigny said he had given Mrs. Munsinger $100 after she had been robbed of everything except the clothes she stood in. "I felt sorry for her," he said.

Mr. Justice Spence questioned Mr. Sevigny closely about when he first heard about Mrs. Munsinger's intention to seek Canadian citizenship in 1960.

The judge said Mr. Sevigny on Monday had stated he had first heard of this Nov. 13, 1960. He asked Mr. Sevigny whether he had instructed his executive assistant, Gaston Levesque, to assist Mrs. Munsinger in her application for citizenship.

Mr. Sevigny said he didn't think he would have done this. Before Nov. 13 any talk of the application would have been "all very casual" and "vague."

"I'm sorry if I express myself in a confusing way," Mr. Sevigny said.

Mr. Justice Spence said "I'm not concerned with your expressions, but in what you say."

Couldn't Recall

Mr. Sevigny said he could not remember whether the matter of the application had arisen before Nov. 13.

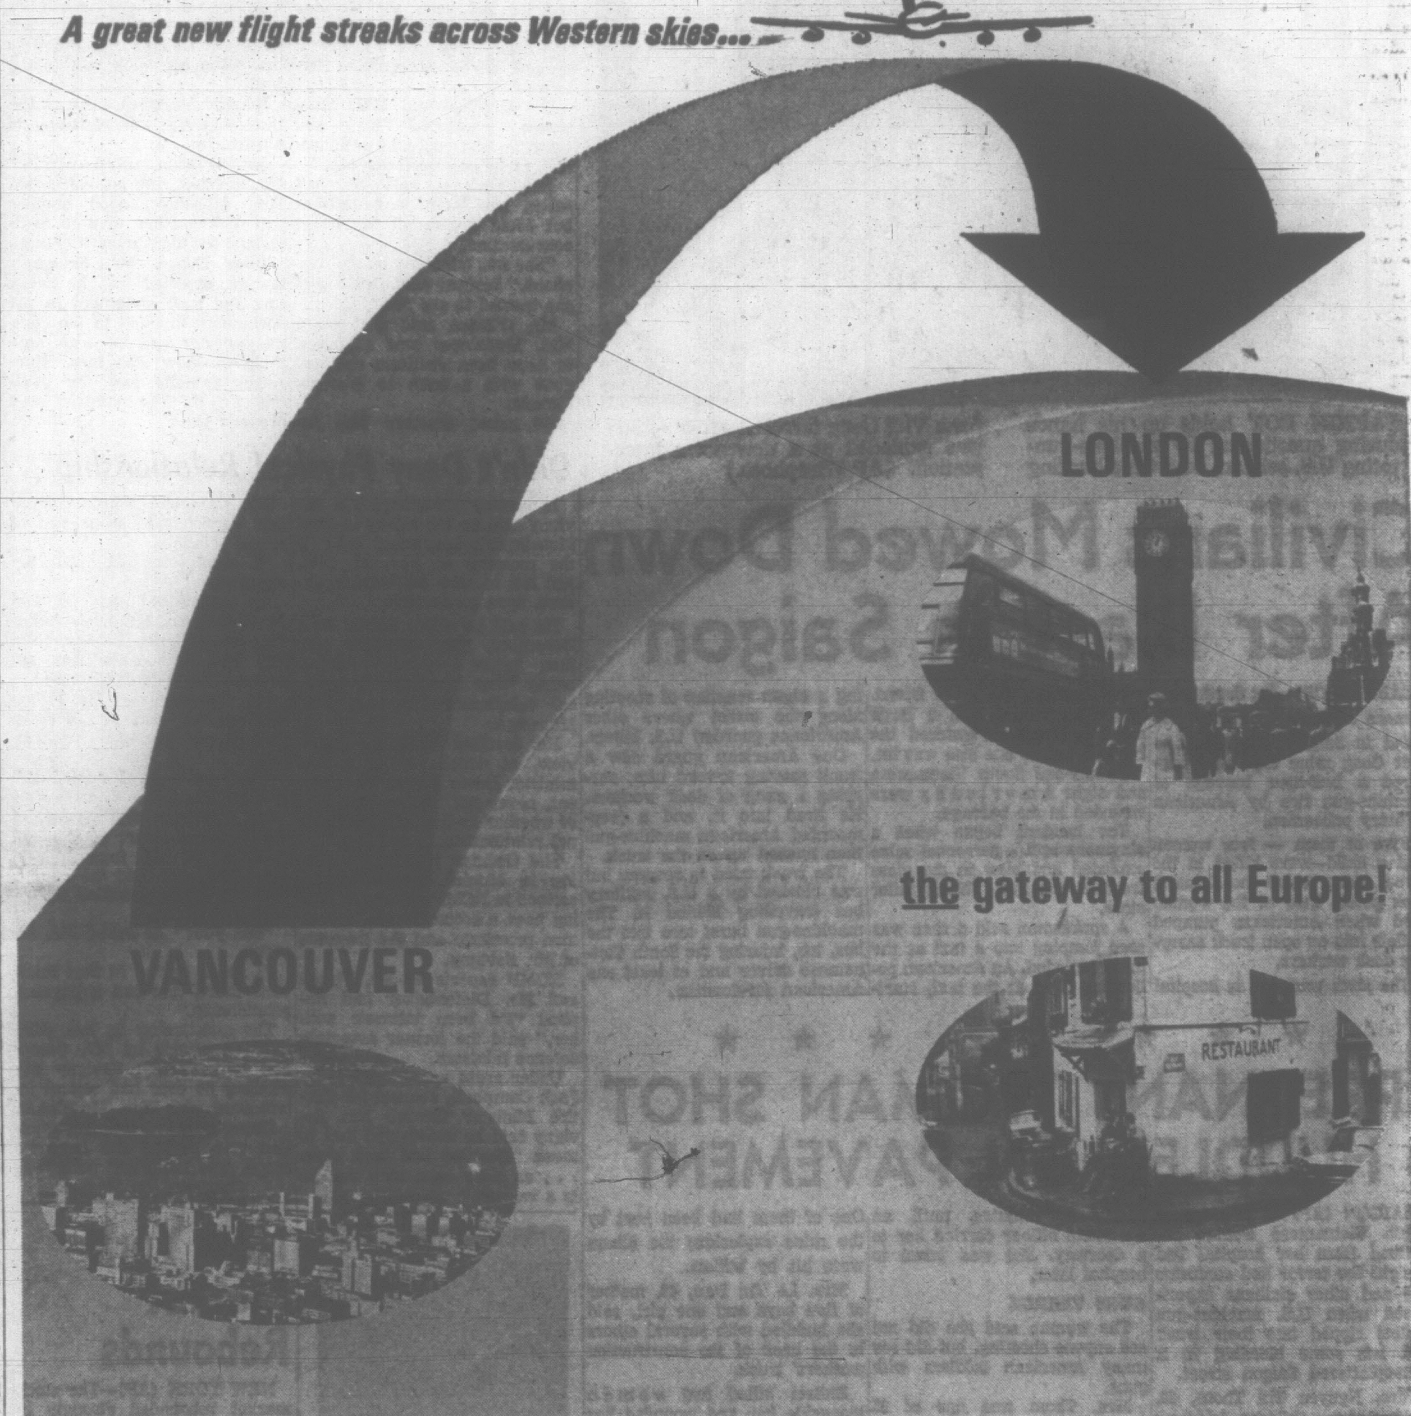

The judge snapped that Mr. Sevigny had remembered well enough Monday that he had first heard of the matter Nov. 13.

At another point, Mr. Sevigny agreed with the judge that he was worried about what Mrs. Munsinger had told the RCMP when they had come to see her about her application for citizenship.

"Your worry was well-founded," the judge said without elaboration.

Mr. Sevigny said that in all likelihood he gave to Mr. Levesque the job of consulting the German consulate on the renewal of Mrs. Munsinger's German passport.

He also said Mr. Levesque had met Mrs. Munsinger in Ottawa or Montreal and that he supposed his assistant was on a first-name basis with her.

Chinese Toss H-Bomb Hint In Test Blast

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — Newspapers brought out their biggest banner headlines here today to announce China's thermonuclear test, but gave the world no further details of what the scientists achieved.

There was little sign of public excitement in Peking streets. News reports were confined to the text of the official announcement, with its enigmatic phrase that the device exploded over western China. Monday contained thermonuclear — or hydrogen bomb — material.

No explanation of the nature or strength of the blast was available today from Chinese officials.

The test was China's third since 1964. The phrasing of the announcement suggested the device had at least elements of the hydrogen bomb — a feat that marks a step forward in China's nuclear progress.

Newspapers announcing the successful test were posted on public noticeboards all over Peking and the announcement was broadcast in factories.

REITERATES STAND

Immediately below the announcement of the test in the Peoples Daily today was a reiteration by Premier Chou En-lai of China's attitude toward the United States and the possibility of war.

He said China would not provoke war but if it was attacked by the Americans, the war would have no boundaries.

The premier's statement was made a month ago in a press interview and observers said the timing of its publication, as well as its place in the official newspaper, left no doubt that it was intended to complement the nuclear announcement.

Chou promised China's "support and help" if any country met with aggression by imperialists headed by the United States.

Without mentioning Viet Nam, he hinted that if China was bombed by the United States it would feel justified in sending troops outside Chinese borders to attack American forces in Asia.

Addressing the U.S. directly, Chou said: "If you come from the sky, why can't we fight back on the ground? That is why we say the war will have no boundaries once it breaks out."

ARE SKEPTICAL

(In Washington, U.S. officials were skeptical the Chinese had tested an H-bomb.)

(U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and state department officials said they were awaiting analysis of radioactive debris from the atmosphere before making a positive judgment.)

(Scientists at Niigata University, northern Japan, said they would collect dust from the rooftop of Niigata's municipal office building to detect fallout expected to reach Japan starting Wednesday.)

(Experts at the French nuclear energy commission in Paris interpreted the Chinese announcement as meaning the bomb was an atomic bomb containing thermonuclear materials such as tritium, deuterium and lithium.)

The Peking announcement suggested the bomb was exploded in the air and probably was dropped from a plane.

SUGGEST IT'S 'DUD'

In Washington, defence officials said China may have come up with a dud in an attempt to detonate a hydrogen bomb.

The mention of "thermonuclear materials" Pentagon sources said, could mean one of two things:

—Chinese scientists attached deuterium or tritium, used in a hydrogen weapon, to an atomic bomb to analyse the effects of the blast on those elements.

—Or China set out to stage a hydrogen explosion and failed to get the proper energy release required to fuse the thermonuclear reaction.

A hydrogen bomb has an atomic device for a trigger. Millions of degrees of heat—provided by the splitting of atoms—are required to fuse the deuterium or tritium elements—and release their awesome power. The atomic device can't, however, go off without unleashing the fusion process.

Marshall Wright, state department press officer, said the test was "in the same general range" as the two previous Chinese detonations in October, 1964, and May, 1965. Both of these were equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, or 20 kilotons.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, asked about the test as he appeared before the Senate foreign relations committee, said he doubts it affects the international situation any more than did the first or second detonations.

A thermonuclear blast would put the Chinese an estimated three years ahead of schedule in their work by U.S. estimates. Dr. Glenn Seaborg, AEC chairman, said in 1964 after the first Chinese nuclear test that China probably was five years away from developing a hydrogen bomb.

MAO'S THOUGHT EXPLODES

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — China's announcement Monday of its third nuclear explosion strongly indicates that the wave of dissidence on the mainland may be deeper and more widespread than suspected abroad.

The gravity of the "anti-party, anti-socialist" movement within China — now apparently the subject of a purge on a scale exceeding that of the "anti-rightist" campaign of 1957 — was pointed up by the repeated reference in the nuclear test announcement of the "thought" and leadership of China's 72-year-old Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The statement said the complete success of the explosion was ensured by the fact that the scientists, technicians, military workers and others involved held high Mao's banner and "gave prominence to politics," creatively studied Mao's works and followed his policies. It called the feat a "great victory for Mao Tse-tung's thought."

In exposing both "anti-party" individuals and those who have merely strayed from the correct path, the Chinese have emphasized that the culprits have either opposed or misinterpreted Mao's writings and thinking.

The use of Mao's name in the statement on the latest bomb test, a practice which was not followed in China's announcements of two previous tests, appeared to be a further effort to rally wavering elements around the Communist party leadership.

N.Y. Air Polluted

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City was told Monday that for every one of its residents, an average of 730 pounds of pollutants is spewed into city air each year. That report was made by a task force appointed by Mayor John V. Lindsay to study a problem which has become a health menace. "All the ingredients now exist for an air-pollution disaster of major proportions," the report said.

U.K.-Europe Links Supported by Queen

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Queen Monday night threw her prestige behind moves to bring Britain into closer co-operation with Continental Europe.

"The days when the nations of Europe could afford to maintain complete independence from each other have long since passed," the Queen said at a state banquet on the first day of a state visit to Belgium.

Alluding discreetly to the issue of Britain's joining Europe's six-nation Common Market, the Queen said:

"Like so many things in life, the desirable is not always immediately attainable, but I join with you in hoping that a way may be found before long to enable us, and all other European countries who wish to do so, to co-operate in building that wider European unity which is in the interest of us all."

Belgium has been one of the strongest advocates of British membership of the Common Market, which seemed near to becoming reality early in 1963, when President de Gaulle of France virtually vetoed further negotiations.

"Today we all recognize that developments in the rest of the world have made it vital for our future that we should become interdependent and work more closely together," the Queen said.

KENNEDY URGES

'Tie U.S. Grants To Reform Plans'

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D — N.Y.) urged Monday that the United States withhold material and moral support from all Latin American nations opposing social, political and economic change.

In his first major speech on hemispheric policy since returning from a tour of the region last November, Kennedy told the senate that the U.S. should clearly identify and associate itself "with the forces of reform and social justice."

Easterners Keeping Woollies On

CHICAGO (AP) — Winter clothes were back in style today in wide areas in the eastern half of the United States as no immediate break appeared in a spell of unseasonably cold weather.

The cold air from central Canada which covered much of the midwest spread into New England and appeared heading into the southland. The weather bureau said the chilly weather might continue for several days.

Freezing weather covered broad areas including Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois and parts of the Dakotas and Nebraska. The frost line also extended across areas in Pennsylvania and New England.

One to two inches of snow fell in parts of Vermont and New Hampshire as part of a belt of precipitation from the middle Atlantic Coast into New England. Earlier three inches of snow fell in Pittsburgh, a record for May.

FIRST VIET HOUSE TO BE POWERLESS

SAIGON (AP) — What did Premier Nguyen Cao Ky say at a press conference Saturday about remaining in power?

The report that he said he would stay in office for at least another year has touched off controversy in South Vietnamese political circles and in Washington.

State Secretary Dean Rusk says Ky's remarks were misinterpreted and that a transcript furnished him of the press conference did not contain the statement by Ky which aroused the controversy.

No transcript was made during the conference, although Ky repeated the gist of his remarks afterward for an NBC television crew. As reconstructed from the NBC tapes and Western correspondents' notes, this is what he said:

Q. Will you resign when an assembly is elected (this fall)?

A. No. Their mission is to draft the constitution. I will stay in power until the National Assembly is elected. Now it will be only a constituent assembly, they have no right to name a government. . . . There will be another election some time in 1967.

Asked whether he will stay in power until then, Ky replied:

"If I feel strong enough, in good health, and if my wife lets me — yes."

Q. That means your government is staying in power another year?

A. The government stays until the constitution is drafted. Then a legislative assembly will be created.

ELECTION NEXT YEAR?

Q. You mean there will be another election next year?

A. Yes, election for National Assembly.

Q. Then you are staying in power for another year?

A. At least for another year. There is no doubt about that.

Hotel Upheld

OTTAWA (CP) — An arbitrator has ruled that the Chateau Laurier acted within its rights when it replaced waiters with waitresses in its cocktail lounge. The decision of H. Carl Goldenberg rejected a complaint by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) that the CNR-owned hotel broke a labor agreement by switching waiters to other jobs.

Mr. Gordon's Choice

PRESS REPORTS LAST WEEK stressed that in launching his new book: A Choice for Canada—Independence or Colonial Status, Mr. Walter Gordon disclaimed any intention of supporting a return to active politics or preparing a move to replace Mr. Pearson as Liberal leader.

But it is impossible to believe that if Mr. Gordon feels the urgent need to strengthen Canada's independence, which is evident in the book, and believes that the many remedies which he proposes could be effective, he could lack a desire to see his remedies used and his objectives achieved.

It could be, of course, that Mr. Gordon would be content merely to have the Liberal Party endorse his policies and implement them. But it seems evident that it would take very little encouragement to persuade Mr. Gordon to seek the succession to his party's leadership.

Much of what he advocates is already Liberal policy, and much else is achieving that status. In his Toronto speech last week, Finance Minister Sharp paralleled many of the things which Mr. Gordon's book contains—and in fact there is reason to believe that the timing of Mr. Sharp's address was determined by the publication date of the former finance minister's volume.

The dominant theme of A Choice for Canada is Mr. Gordon's warning that we are in danger of becoming further submerged in the economic system of the giant country that is our neighbor, and his suggestions as to how this may be avoided. If it does nothing else, the book and the wide discussion that it has aroused should awaken Canadians to the situation that is developing.

Much of Canada's resources, many of its industries are controlled by foreign investment. We have encouraged that investment—mostly from the United States—as a quick means of developing the country. But now the system of branch plants, with control from head offices in the United States and a strong influence from the government in Washington, presents a threat to our sovereignty.

Some of the policies which the United States imposes on its corporations in an effort to conserve U.S. dollars, for example, are not in the best interests of Canada. So far, the United States has lent a friendly ear to Canadian protests, against this or that guide line, but our situation is a precarious one and may well grow more so.

Mr. Gordon—and Mr. Sharp—and presumably every Canadian who understands the situation, will support a move to restore greater Canadian control of Canadian industry. While we wish to be a world trader with the full freedom of trade which that position entails, we cannot overlook the fact that we are next to the world's greatest industrial and commercial nation. We cannot pretend that our policies can be made without this constantly in mind. And the situation is emphasized because of the seeming reluctance of Canadians to invest in domestic corporations. Bonds, insurance policies and other investments with rock-bottom safety are the Canadian preference. American money, with a willingness to take a risk, is thus the backbone of our development.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Sharp differ in some respects in their plans to meet this situation—perhaps still more in their basic philosophies of nationalism. But the common concern of both men for this Canadian problem is an indication of its seriousness and a clear indication that it will be an urgent matter for federal government action in the days ahead.

Democracy in Difficulties

THE STEPS LEADING UP TO the election of a democratic national assembly are necessarily complicated in a country so war-torn and disorganized as South Viet Nam. Marshal Ky has announced that he will stay in office for at least another year, and there are already stirrings of further trouble as a result of this.

It is impossible to know for certain whether or not the difficulties involved in organizing the election have been seized on by the military group as an excuse for delay. There are good grounds for believing that Marshal Ky agreed to hold elections only under duress; that neither he nor the other members of the ruling junta believe that a democratically-elected assembly could successfully prosecute the war.

The American position in this situation is difficult to assess. Correspondents in Viet Nam are inclined to the belief that many of the United States officials there, both military and civilian, if not hostile to the idea of elections are at least not inclined to be helpful. Reports from Washington, on the other hand, indicate that a growing number of responsible officials see some hope of ending American involvement through a democratic South Vietnamese government coming to terms with the Viet Cong eventually. There is thus the usual difference of opinion between the man on the firing line and the man back at base headquarters.

The situation is undoubtedly perilous for the United States. If the dissident Buddhists become convinced that the military junta is deliberately stalling on the elections—and they have their suspicions now—their fury will know no bounds and the four-week-long riots of last month will prove to have been only a prelude to worse disorders.

President Johnson unequivocally embraced Marshal Ky as the undisputed leader of South Viet Nam in American eyes at their Honolulu meeting. But if Ky will not keep to his word on the elections he may have to be repudiated by the United States for, one way or another, free elections appear to be the Americans' last hope of eventually getting out of Viet Nam with honor.

Greenery and Scenery

MR. DAN CAMPBELL'S announcement that the provincial government's policy is to preserve the north end of Vancouver Island as a permanent green recreational area will get a welcome from all conservationists. Limited urban build-up, trash-free highways, and preservation of the natural growth over this favored area are all laudible aims and deserve full public support.

The government's record so far in preservation of existing major parklands is not one to raise a great deal of enthusiasm. While the program on minor parks and camping areas has been excellent, the big parks that constitute the backbone of the whole system have suffered through whittling and commercialization. In this connection, the municipal affairs minister's assurance to a Campbell River audience that townsite development within Strathcona Park will be kept to a minimum and pollution of Buttle Lake will not be permitted is also welcome news. But these statements are in the nature of making the best of a bad job. Much better would have been a firm, vigorous policy that safeguarded these public scenic and recreational areas from encroachment in the first place.

Still, the "green" program for the northern part of the island shows the right intent. Since much of the territory is in forestry licences anyway and on a perpetual yield basis, recognition of the country as available for recreational needs as well, will entail public co-operation in safeguarding the asset.

Britain's New Tax on Manpower Hoarding

THE British people don't quite know whether to laugh or cry over the budget unveiled Tuesday by the chancellor of the exchequer, James Callaghan.

The first reaction was a nervous giggle of relief. The chancellor didn't do even one of the terrible things that were expected of him. No increase in the income tax. No new credit squeeze. Gasoline would remain at the equivalent of 79 cents a gallon, cigarettes at 80 cents a pack, liquor at $7.50 a bottle and automobile licences at $32.50 a year.

Instead, Mr. Callaghan proposed the most inoffensive-looking payroll tax:

Even at that he promised to reimburse the majority of those who will have to pay it. And even if the new tax were immediately passed on to the public in its entirety—which the chancellor every much doubted—the increase in the cost of living would not be more than one per cent.

Taxless Spring?

Apparently the "high-tax" Socialist leopards had changed their spots. The British people, who have come to associate tax increases with spring crocuses, had for once been left off.

Or had they? It suddenly began to dawn on some members of Parliament and some financial correspondents that Mr. Callaghan's selective employment tax—already christened S.E.T.—was not going to be as painless as it looked.

After some figuring on the back of envelopes, it soon became obvious that Mr. Callaghan had, in fact, given the economy a good deflationary wallop—not as stiff as the stern deflationists had been urging, but much stiffer than the mild deflationists considered wise.

By general agreement, a tax increase of $450 million to $600 million had come to be considered as lying on the border between a mildly deflationary and a sternly deflationary budget. But S.E.T. is going to set the country back roughly $945 million in its first year and $720 million in subsequent years. This year's gleaming may even be enough to satisfy the sternest of the stern deflationists.

Third Stage

There is a possibility, moreover, that Mr. Callaghan's figures haven't taken adequate account of S.E.T.'s deflationary potential. Now the third stage of popular reaction has set in. Not only has the mailed fist been discovered inside the velvet glove. There is also a growing suspicion that Mr. Callaghan's new tax might also be a bad piece of economics. The argument, in short, is that the chancellor has hit harder than he needed to and that he has failed to hit in the right place.

Ironically, a principal flaw in the new selective employment tax may well be that it isn't sufficiently selective. Mr. Callaghan started by applying the tax to the broadest possible categories of labor. Employers will be required to pay the equivalent of $3.75 a week for each male employee, $1.87 for women, and lesser amounts for juniors. If he had left it there, he would at least have satisfied those who have been arguing that a universal payroll tax would help to eliminate the crucial problems of manpower hoarding and the uneconomical use of labor.

But the chancellor didn't leave it there. Not only did he want to deflate the economy and place a premium on manpower. He also wanted to change the basic structure of the economy by encouraging a redistribution of labor. The idea here is that Britain, in common with other developed nations, is experiencing a rapid expansion in the service industries at the expense of manufacturing industries, which are finding it harder and harder to recruit the necessary personnel.

Hoping to correct this situation, Mr. Callaghan has decided to apply S.E.T. universally but to vary its effectiveness by attaching a selective reimbursement scheme. In order to do so he has divided the economy into three parts.

The so-called service industry—including the construction industry, strangely enough—will pay the tax and receive no reimbursement. "Neutral industries"— government, the nationalized industries and transportation—will get the precise amount of the tax back. The manufacturing industries will get the tax back plus a small premium—$1.12 a week for men—designed to offset any of the new tax costs that might be passed along by the service industry.

The tax won't be as complicated to collect as the Conservatives have been complaining, because the levies will be reflected merely as an increase in national insurance premiums. But it is true that the government will be taking a lot of money that will then have to be repaid to two out of three classes of industry. And S.E.T. certainly contains other administrative drawbacks.

A final reservation has to be that, as a deflationary instrument, the new tax is extremely clumsy. By picking on the service industries to bear the entire burden, the government has ensured that the added costs will be passed along to the public on the broadest possible front—which can hardly be termed selective taxation.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Medical Rush Is On

Mr. Lippmann's survey of hospital and nursing shortages in the United States presents an interesting parallel to conditions in Canada and particularly Greater Victoria.

THE new program to pay for medical care for old people goes into effect on July 1, and there is every probability that the strain laid on hospitals, clinics, and nursing homes, on doctors, nurses, and technicians will be critical. For the new laws, the medicare program itself and the Kerr-Mills Act which Congress enacted at the same time, will increase the effective demand for medical services. But these laws do not create any new additional supply of the medical facilities and the trained personnel which are necessary to meet the demand.

The crux of the matter is that the new legislation provides the money for old people to pay for the medical services which many have waited and have not been able to pay for. This in itself is of course a worthy objective. But this new demand for hospitals, doctors, nurses, and the like comes upon us when the existing medical facilities are already hard put to serve those who can afford to pay for medical service.

For, as everyone knows from his own experience, doctors' offices and hospitals are already overcrowded and overworked. Yet the additional medicare patients are still to appear in July. The existing tightness is a result of two main facts: that so many people have become so much more affluent and are able to pay for medical services; yet the government which responds to the wishes of the majority has not provided the money needed to enlarge the supply of medical facilities and personnel. We cannot excuse our negligence by pleading that we are overtaken by surprise. On the contrary, the gruesome gap between the supply and the demand for medical services has been studied and documented repeatedly. Fifteen years ago President Truman appointed a commission on the health needs of the nation, headed by that very distinguished man, Dr. Paul Magnuson. The commission spent a year investigating the medical situation and preparing its recommendations.

It found (in 1952) that "the expected supply of physicians in 1960 will fall far short of the number needed... for broadened medical services." In 1959 there were 134 doctors of medicine for 100,000 of the population. In 1961, the dean of the Yale Medical School, Dr. Vernon W. Lippard, reckoned that in order to maintain the same (and inadequate) ratio, there would be required by 1975 an annual production of 11,000 physicians.

Schools of Medicine

"The only solution," he wrote, "appears to be the establishment of at least 20 new schools of medicine during the 1960s."

Since he wrote that, the ratio of physicians to civilian population has in fact deteriorated. There are especially severe shortages of pathologists, anesthesiologists and radiologists.

There is a critical shortage of nurses. Dr. Magnuson's commission predicted in 1952 that "the shortage for the country as a whole in 1960 may exceed 50,000." The president of the American Hospital Association stated recently that "there are budgeted vacancies for at least 75,000 registered nurses and 25,000 licensed practical nurses."

The shortage of trained people is the most worrisome condition because it takes so much longer to train personnel than it does to build hospitals and clinics and laboratories. Yet the Congress is far more willing to spend money on buildings than on medical education. Thus in fiscal 1965, 17 million dollars of federal money was spent on nurses' training while under the Hill-Burton program of support of construction of hospitals and other medical facilities, 220 millions were spent. No doubt they were well spent.

For among all the shortages there is also a shortage of good medical buildings.

Staff Needed

But without trained people, the buildings cannot provide medical care.

It is a grave reflection on our capacity for self-government that, having been put clearly on notice 15 years ago by the Magnuson Commission, we have pledged the money to increase the demand for medical service without enlarging the facilities which are to meet the demand. It took the shock of Sputnik to arouse public opinion to the need for federal money to provide better primary and secondary education. It took the savage riots in Birmingham to make the nation realize that the Civil Rights Act was overdue. Will it now take a crisis in the hospitals to cause us to take seriously the need to remedy the shortage in the medical services?

Gorge Waterway

The insincerity of the approach to the problem of the Gorge waterway is apparent when we see on one hand, money being appropriated to beautify the Gorge, and on the other hand we see garbage being dumped right to the edge of the water.—"Observer."

Something Blue

I am sick to death of the subject of sex. Three big headlines in last Tuesday's paper. Anyone would think it was something new.—Old Maid.

Not Parasites

In regard to the attack on the Committee for Justice and Liberty Foundation and the Christian Labour Association of Canada by the B.C. Federation of Labour, I would like to say that in some cases CLAC members have voluntarily paid the money equivalent to their union dues—to charitable organizations and should therefore not be called parasites.

Mr. Staley of the B.C. Federation of Labour also is amazed at the attitude (un-Christian) taken by these two Christian groups. May I inform him that the CLAC is a free, independent Christian trade union and seeks to uphold Christian social principles.—N. A.

Our Fairy Prince

The other day you had a fine editorial appraising Mr. Bennett's proposed subsidy to tenants in order that they might build their own homes. Your editorial made many telling points and the leader was much appreciated. Mr. Bennett, without a by-your-leave, has calmly appropriated $25,000,000 of the hard-pressed taxpayers' money to play again his favorite role of Fairy Prince.

Tenants and owners will, of course, both pay for the two subsidies. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has just published figures which show that 70 per cent of the people of Vancouver are home owners (incidentally 90 per cent are car owners!). Of the 30 per cent left, supposing similar figures for other urban areas, quite a fair proportion will not wish the work, trouble and worry of home-ownership.

But even so the $25,000,000 will not go far in acquiring suitable land and paying the present soaring costs of building, taking the province as a whole. Where are the vacant lots at any reasonable cost? Certainly not in the urban centres, such as Vancouver or Victoria or New Westminster.

No announcement of the size of the grant has yet been made. It had better be adequate, for the Social Credit party has forced up building costs by their grandiose projects until even Finance Minister Bennett has had to call a halt. There is a saying, "Fools will build houses for wise men to live in"—meaning, of course, that a high cost era is no time to be building. Prices will fall again, they always have. My friends tell me this second subsidy is just an election gimmick. It could be just that.—John Kenny, PO Box 84, Victoria.

Rope's End

An editorial in your issue of May 4 under the heading "Wall-to-Wall Tight-rope," stated the National Housebuilders' Association in a telegram to the federal cabinet said inter alia: "Unless the government modifies its policy of monetary restraint—despite danger to the nation of further inflation—many housebuilders would be forced into bankruptcy and unemployment would swell."

An explanation of such an absurd statement seems definitely due the public. Our economy is based on the profit system and it seems inconceivable that the housebuilders after several years of activity in their line of business can be in such weak financial position as is indicated, particularly when the high prices for dwellings are taken into consideration.

The inference is that the contractors have been consistently losing money on house construction and have been carrying on by using funds for current work to pay for previous commitments, and debts will catch up with them when the condition ceases.

If the National Housebuilders' Association cannot produce a better reason than that suggested against possible government action intended to combat inflation, the stand they have taken is very weak to say the least of it.—H. P. Wilson, 643 Harbinger Ave.

Bad Start

Ottawa Le Droit

The second phase of the federal session got off to a bad start. A government problem was made out of a conflict of personalities, the Lapierre-Watson incident, just as if the management of a radio-television enterprise did not have the right to eliminate a program or to bid its hosts goodbye.

The resumption—began badly in another way. The members had hardly returned to Ottawa when that great lover of justice and righter of wrongs in the Commons, Stanley Knowles of the NDP, accused Prime Minister Pearson of wanting to muzzle the House by imposing a time limit on debates.

At the convention of Young Liberals, Mr. Pearson made mention of the heavy legislative program still on hand and pointed out that from the resumption of the session to the end of June when the summer recess is expected there were only 29 sitting days. Thus dispatch was needed and he would ask the co-operation of the opposition parties.

Such a request is as logical as can be, and Mr. Knowles himself has often deplored the slowness of debates.

Mr. Pearson not only was right to want to limit the length of debates, but he should also have done more. Rather than limit himself to soliciting the co-operation of the Opposition, he should propose new rules of procedure and even a total reorganization of the system in such a way that a precise time limit would be established for the study of all bills and resolutions.

Another bad omen for this second phase of the session is the rage of Conservative Leader Diefenbaker against the inquiry on the Munsinger affair.

The roles reversed, the accused rather than the accuser, Mr. Diefenbaker cries "witch-hunt" as if he had never indulged in one himself.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From The Times of May 10, 1966:

The Canadian Pacific's fast transcontinental express No. 97 was held up by three masked men at midnight east of Kamloops. But the robbery was a failure, for only seven registered letters, all from Victoria, were taken. The robbers completely overlooked several packages containing $40,000 in small bills and gold. One of the robbers examined the packages but did not inquire about them. The bandits left empty-handed except for the registered letters. A posse of 100 cowboys and Indians from Kamloops were in pursuit.

Quebec Education Report Arouses Campaign Furore

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

QUEBEC — Premier Jean Lesage's election campaign for a mandate to deal firmly with Ottawa "in the name of all Quebecers" has run up against an issue on which all Quebecers are far from united and which has nothing to do with Ottawa.

The last installment of the report of the Parent Commission on education — potentially the most explosive section because it deals with the controversial question of neutral schools — had been scheduled for publication March 31.

McDowell

When it did not appear on schedule, and remained under wraps after Mr. Lesage called the election, there were mounting public demands for its publication.

The opposition Union Nationale was not alone in challenging the government to let the public know what the report recommended and what its own policies were. Various educational groups and voluntary associations took a similar stand and there was impatience within the Parent commission itself.

Friday, one member of the commission spoke out publicly. Guy Rocher, vice-dean of the faculty of social sciences of the University of Montreal, accused Mr. Lesage's government of an "abuse of power" and a "totalitarian spirit" in withholding the report.

"Professor Rocher, a sociologist, said he was speaking as a private citizen and not as a member of the commission. That proviso did not diminish the impact of his criticism."

The same day Le Soleil, Quebec City's major newspaper, published in a front-page, headlined story, the tenor of the recommendations of the section of the report that deals with the association of religion and education.

The following day, Saturday, the mass-circulation La Presse de Montreal, published what it presented as the text of the recommendations of that section of the report.

La Presse did not identify its source. It simply announced it was publishing the recommendations because it believed this was in the public interest.

1066 and All That

By TERRY COLEMAN
Manchester Guardian

"That," said Vanessa, secretary to the 1066 organizer at Hastings, indicating a heap of sandstone dumped at the pier, "is the stone I used to be a mile along the front, and the Army moved it to us. He's supposed to have eaten his supper off it, et cetera, et cetera, before the battle."

He was William the Conqueror. And Vanessa's "et cetera, et cetera" about sums up the enthusiasm for the various local and national celebrations to take place during this year of the Conqueror. She also says that they are going to have shields on lamp posts along the front.

William landed at Pevensey, conquered at Battle, was proclaimed King at Berkhamstead. Earlier Harold had won another separate battle at Stamford Bridge, and after he was killed at Battle his remains were buried at Waltham Abbey. All these places are in on the act this year.

Avoid Clash

Let them should clash, these separate celebrations are being assisted by a Co-ordinating Committee for the Commemoration of 1066, whose president is the Duke of Norfolk. So far everything is proceeding like a military operation, though few people will openly admit that things are quite as bad as this would suggest.

But the Co-ordinating Committee is unwelcome.

In Hastings there are murmurs. On its own, the town had happily arranged with the army to borrow soldiers for parades. Then the committee said all these things had to be co-ordinated that is, done all over again through the Ministry of Defence.

Hastings would be happier without this splendid committee, which has its headquarters far away in London, in a dower house at Queen Anne's Gate.

The "Hastings Observer" has produced a witty commemorative issue, dated October 16, 1066, with the headline: "England conquered," which takes the mickey out of 1066 and all that and out of the techniques of present-day journalism.

"Axes no match for horse and bow — says 'Observer' military expert."

Says Nothing

Opposite the pier, Group Captain Ralph Ward, the 1066 organizer, has his office. Hastings, he says, is spending £30,000, but expects to recover it from visitors. He has a full programme; of the co-ordinating committee he will say nothing.

The chairman of the East Sussex County Council, Alderman C. W. Sheldrake, thinks that those who "celebrate" the event (as distinct from merely "commemorating" it) must be a lot of Normans. He considers himself a Saxon and thinks it was a very sad battle. Now he wants to see that Normans do not overtake the Saxons.

Nobody in Hastings seems to feel as strongly as the people of Veauville-le-Bains in Normandy, who have refused to contribute to the present junketings because the Conqueror once extorted 10 gold talents from the village and forgot to repay, but most are apathetic.

Except that one store on the front here is selling rather a lot of Bayeux Tapestry dishcloths, price five shillings and elevenpence.

Migrants from West Germany pass the time at Castle Barby, the "Reception Home" for Germans wishing to enter Communist East Germany. Between August, 1961, and August, 1965, 69,660 persons were admitted from the West.

The Other Side of 'The Wall' Refugees From Prosperity Moving to East Germany

EAST BERLIN — A long line of Volkswagens and Opels stood one beside the other outside the tall grey building. They were all used cars, but not one of them carried a number plate.

At the entrance, a constable of the Volkspolizei was helping a new arrival to unscrew the West German number plate from his Taunus. The man from the West looked well dressed and prosperous—no outward signs on him of economic disaster or social despair.

To the right of the entrance, there was a see-saw with laughing children on it having a high old time. As they bounced up and down, a neat-looking kindergarten nanny sang the German equivalent of "See Saw, Marjorie Daw."

Great Opportunity For Wives, Mothers

"Never before have wives and mothers in Germany had such opportunities to participate in shaping the social life of the country as under the Workers and Peasants' State of the German Democratic Republic."

I had arrived at the place which was to provide the biggest surprise yet of the many I had encountered during my 17-day exploration of what lies on the other side of Ulbricht's wall: the 300-year-old Castle Barby, once the seat of the Counts of Barby at the point where the Saale River flows into the Elbe, now the "Reception Home" and transit camp where Germans wishing to migrate from the West to East are given the once-over to decide whether they are fit to be admitted to the Marxist paradise or not.

Yes, you read correctly: Germans emigrating from West to East. Migrating from the fleshpots of the West German economic miracle to what in the West has always been described as the quagmire, the misery, and unfreedom of "the zone." Migrating to the state which many other Germans are still risking death to flee from, and around which Ulbricht had had to build a concentration camp wall to prevent its citizens draining away to the West.

Who Are They And How Many?

How many of these migrants are there? Who are they? What makes them do it? I had come to Barby to find out.

Herr Ernst Krieg, the director of the "Reception Home," was waiting to welcome me in the guard room of the Volkspolizei in the entrance lodge. He was a former cabinet maker who had been a member of the Communist underground during the Hitler regime.

"And how many... er... candidates for admission have you here at the moment, Herr Krieg?" I asked, pointing to the people who were strolling around the castle courtyard.

"Today we have 234 inmates."

"And roughly how many new arrivals do you have per day?"

"That varies. At the beginning of the month, it works out about 15. In the middle of the month, it drops to about six to eight arrivals. Towards the end of the month, it picks up again so that we get about 20 to 25 a day. I don't know what causes these fluctuations. Maybe it has something to do with pay day."

This is the second of three articles on life today in East Germany. The author, the distinguished British journalist Sefton Delmer, recently toured that Communist-ruled country, and came back with some significant observations on life on "the other side of the wall."

By SEFTON DELMER

"And roughly how many of these people are West Germans who have never lived in East Germany before, and how many persons who went west and are now returning?"

"Well, as far as our experience at Barby goes, I would say that roughly 55 per cent are 'ruekkkehrer' (home-comers). Every fourth one among them belongs to the 19 to 25 age group."

Later, I managed to obtain some official statistics which covered the five other reception camps as well as Barby. Between August, 1961, and August, 1965, no fewer than 69,660 persons were admitted from West Germany and assigned homes and work in East Germany. Of these, 39,770 were East German home-comers.

"And how many persons do you refuse to admit to the GDR?"

"Well, of course, we make a very careful check on the background of everyone who applies for admission. We ask the West German police whether the new arrivals have a criminal record, and if we find they have a serious one we put them on the train and send them back to the frontier at Helmstedt."

"How many people do you send back?"

"About 25 per cent."

Everyone Put Through Check

"We put everyone through a very careful check. They are made to tell their story over and over again, orally and in writing. That starts on the very first day when they go into a 24-hour quarantine for a medical checkup. A fellow with a phoney story soon trips up and contradicts himself. For remember, we are checking up on him outside the camp as well."

If you have brought your own car, your Western number plate, removed on arrival, is put back on again when you leave, after acceptance. But you are only allowed to keep it as far as your destination. There you are given a new East German number. That is, if you are allowed to keep your car at all. For many of the cars turn out not to have been paid for, and are returned to the West.

All this rigmarole would get me down before I even started my new life. If I were a young German and wanted to emigrate I would rather go to Canada or South Africa.

But it does not deter these migrants from West Germany. They come over in an ever-increasing stream. They arrive in families or singly.

Allowed to Talk To New Arrivals

By this time, we were comfortably ensconced in Herr Krieg's office. He graciously agreed to let me talk with a few of the recent arrivals.

The first to come in was Erich Bringezu, a 36-year-old fitter from Hilden, near Düsseldorf.

"Why did you decide to leave the Federal Republic and come to East Germany?" I asked him. Herr Bringezu had a ready answer which must have been music to Herr Krieg's ears.

"For the simple reason that here one can behave like a human being. Life here is not so hectic as over there."

What I suspected to have been his real reason for leaving came to light, however, in his next answers.

"Have you come alone?"

"I have brought my 14-year-old son with me."

"Not your wife?"

"No. My wife and I have not been able to get along together for the last two years."

(When I got back to West Germany, I had a check made on what was known there of Erich Bringezu and the other Barby inmates I met. Here is the report on Bringezu: Divorced as the guilty party on Sept. 1, 1965, in Wuppertal, he was ordered to pay 450 marks a month alimony to his wife for the upkeep of their four children. He had not paid a penny for the last two months, and the wife is being supported by welfare authorities. His wife and his one-time colleagues say that he managed to borrow several thousand marks a few weeks ago. Shortly after that he went east. He has not repaid the money.)

Talked Briefly With Others

On our way out through the courtyard, I managed to talk briefly with a few other "guests," and ask them what had prompted them to leave the West.

After checking up on their past, too, it was no longer a mystery why they preferred to go to Ulbrichtland instead of starting life afresh in Canada or South Africa. Neither Canada nor South Africa would have admitted many of them. But now I had a new puzzle.

Why did Comrade Krieg pick this crew to present to me? Was his checkup on their past inadequate? Or were they really the best he had to offer from his 234 "guests"?

The Megastructure Of Paolo Soleri

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
The Washington Post

PHOENIX, Arizona — Paolo Soleri, a sculptor-architect who sees the city of the future as a single structure, lives some 14 miles from the centre of this city of sunshine and billboards in what is called Paradise Valley.

But it is Paradise Lost. And this 'may account for the desperate arrogance of Soleri's schemes.

None of them have been built. They are vague, haunting concepts, expressed in a few models and countless sketches and drawings. Soleri's only actual structures, aside from a ceramics factory in his native Italy, are the rambling, strangely beautiful cave dwellings here in the desert where he lives and works.

Yet, among many idealistic students of architecture throughout the country, Soleri is looked upon as a kind of Saint Augustine of architecture, a saintly prophet who disdains the steel and glass of materialistic building and defies the computer-controlled Buckminster Fuller visions of a technocratic future. In a complex, mystic way, this complex, mystic man would have us return to nature.

Born in Turin, Italy, 46 years ago, Paolo Soleri came to the U.S. in 1947 to study with Frank Lloyd Wright at Taliesin West, the master's monastic workshop not far from here on the rim of the Maricopa Mesa. But he never entirely succumbed to Frank Lloyd Wright's spell as most of the Taliesin apprentices do. Soleri is too deeply, too creatively an artist in his own right. But he succumbed to the spell of the desert.

Wild Eden

It is easy. No cinerama technicolor can convey the fascination of this wide, wild Eden. Nor can words describe the spell.

Frank Lloyd Wright thought it heresy to intrude on the desert. His buildings, at Taliesin especially, are, as he so often said "not on the hills, but of them." They blend with the contours of the land and there is much of primeval, Mayan or Aztec architecture about them.

Soleri goes further. He digs his structures into the red clay of the mesa so as not to disturb its natural beauty. His method of building is unique.

Together, first with his charming wife and now with student-apprentices who flock to him from everywhere, he hollows the forms for his walls, columns and domes out of the earth. Then he pours concrete into them. And when the concrete has hardened, he scrapes away the soil and finishes the building with whatever doors, window panes and furnishings they require.

No architecture, needless to say, could be more organic, in better harmony with the soil from which it has literally grown. Moreover, here, seemingly removed from our complicated, specialized, mechanical world, is an architecture of simple craftsmanship that is primitive, however, only in the sense that some sculptures of Picasso or a painting by Pollock or Soutine may appear primitive.

In fact, you enter not so much the artless dwelling of a Quixotic hermit, but the wondrous world of abstract art as you meander through the rambling concrete environment Soleri has created for himself. The dug-outs, half-shells, cave-dwellings, inner courts and arcades connected by walkways and tunnels, are often richly decorated with all manner of relief ornamentation. They are, furthermore, delightfully alive with the tinkle and clanking of clay bells Soleri makes and sells here. Along with his abstract sculptures, they are his primary source of income.

Unconventional

Nor is there anything Quixotic about the man. Slight, almost ascetic-looking, Paolo Soleri is, to be sure, deliberately unconventional. Rumor has it that he has never in his life worn a necktie. But necktie or not, Soleri is a craftsman-artist-philosopher of great sophistication who sees in his structures not a private retreat but an avant-garde effort of messianic meaning.

He would build not only simple dwellings like his own, but entire cities, in organic, sculptural shapes, form and arrangements so that they become part of the earth and somehow fit into the ecology of nature. From the two words "architecture" and "ecology" he coined his own word, "archology." And his workshop abounds with clay models of "archological" power dams and bridges, fascinating, functional sculptures, that seem to grow, like fecund tropical plants, out of the mountains and cliffs. What's more, people would live in and on these dams and bridges. Why, if we make the effort to build such structures, argues Soleri, should we not also inhabit them?

To preserve nature, he would confine man in a huge megastructure, a single "archological" building. His new visionary drawings show cities, shaped somewhat like a huge urn, that are to contain as many as 300,000 people. They would live in the walls of the urn, looking both in and out. These walls would be terraced and sculptured to provide spaces for what he calls "neo-nature," little parks and gardens.

No Cars

The tops of the walls would be large enough to hold airports. In the bottom of the urn would be the major public facilities, all manner of buildings and sports fields and the other things that make a city a city. The industrial plants would be underground and people would move about in this beehive by means of transportation conveyors, escalators and elevators. No cars.

Fantastic? Architecture has always had its utopias that seemed way out. One of them was an Italian named Sant'elia who died in 1916 at the age of 18. He drew the "Citta Nuova," the new city of skyscrapers bridging huge highways and of plazas on various levels on the top of buildings. It looks not unlike New York today.

If your beneficiary dies first, what will happen to your life insurance benefits?

When the unexpected happens, as it sometimes does, it's important to know what steps to take. That's why the competent advice of your Manufacturers Life representative is so valuable. Here are some of the practical points he'll cover.

1. Unless you originally named an alternative or contingent beneficiary, the money from your policy would be payable to your estate. This may tie up the money and subject it to creditors claims and unnecessary estate costs. In the end, it might not even go to the person you would have chosen unless your will is up to date.

2. If young children were also originally named as beneficiaries, and they are still under age, another problem arises. Unless you make special provision, the policy proceeds at your death would have to be paid into court and held until they reach their majority.

But don't wait until something like this happens. Call your Manufacturers Life representative today. He will review your beneficiary arrangements—and suggest changes if they are necessary. He is experienced in matters of this kind, and he offers you the kind of counsel you can rely on.

Two Major Merchandisers Back Uniform Regulations

By AL KENT
Business Writer

Two of Victoria's three biggest downtown merchandisers say shopping hours regulation should be uniform on an area basis.

They are the managers of Standard Furniture and the Bay, two of a group of businesses polled by the Times on the store hours question.

The Chamber report is due this month. It is not expected to recommend any sweeping change.

But it is understood the various segments of the retail community agree that extension of night shopping is not in the best interests of retailers and shoppers.

Eaton's, the third major downtown leader of retailing practices, attempts to follow the established shopping pattern in serving public wants.

An Eaton's spokesman noted six-day shopping seemed to be common in Victoria. But, as part of a national chain, the store is required to follow dictates of broad policy.

Standard Furniture is the only major downtown firm that adheres to five-day shopping, closing all day Wednesday.

Woodward's, on the periphery of the business section, closes Monday.

"I think there must be broad control," said Standard's Tom Denny. "Otherwise we would all be competing to keep open longer hours. I think it needs area or province-wide legislation."

Mr. Denny pointed out that artificial reasons for staying open longer hours results in a 15-20 per cent added overhead cost, a factor not appreciated by the public.

Standard employs a full-time staff who get a full 40 hours per week, including one night per week for late shopping.

Some stores find that to keep the extended hours an elaborate system of part-time employees must be used.

"I think every store would like to keep more sensible hours," Mr. Denny said. "There should be more uniformity in all the municipalities," said Bay manager Howard McKay.

"But when you leave it up to the municipalities you get a lot of problems."

Before store hours were left open to individual options, some shops were restricted as to what they could sell within specified hours on particular days, for example.

The most economical way to operate a store, Mr. McKay said, is to close one day a week. But this is not convenient.

"There are so many tourists in Victoria that our company has never favored closing a full day."

He said a trend is developing toward more controlled hours in the retail trade.

"I would think in this area we should have one night and six days a week shopping," he said.

The Vancouver Island division of Retail Merchants' Association of Canada blames Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell for failing to bring consistency in shopping hours.

Gerry Merrill, RMA representative, said Mr. Campbell let merchants down badly in the last year because he has done nothing to bring store hours regulation under control of the regional services board.

The association has urged repeatedly during the past four years that store hours be legislated by the provincial government instead of leaving them to local option.

As a result, each municipality has a different approach to regulation and there has been a creeping expansion of night shopping hours, particularly during the pre-Christmas season.

The chamber study has brought out tacit agreement that the long Christmas season hours should be rolled back.

AUTO MAKERS ADMIT

Car Sales Hurt By Safety Issue

DETROIT (AP)—Two of the U.S. auto industry's top leaders say the auto safety issue has hurt car sales.

Arjay Miller, president of Ford Motor Co., referred to the "harassment" of the auto safety issue Monday in reporting a slowdown in Ford production.

Roy Abernethy, president of American Motors and of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, added today:

Net Profits Announced

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sales and first quarter profits were up substantially over last year, Crestbrook Timber Ltd. president and general manager Victor Brown reports.

Sales of the Cranbrook-based lumber firm were $2,400,000 compared with $1,800,000 last year.

Net profit was $175,264 compared with $105,000 in the previous year.

Mr. Brown said the company operated two shifts to keep up with strong demand for lumber, especially from U.S. buyers.

He said steady progress is being made toward completion of arrangements for construction of a 700-ton per day pulp mill.

The previously announced $6,000,000 pulp mill plan is a partnership between Crestbrook and two Japanese firms.

Radio Network Eyes Sale To Corporation

NEW YORK (AP)—A spokesman for Mutual Broadcasting System said Sunday night a group of individuals has set up a corporation and obtained an option to purchase the radio network from the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

The spokesman said employees of the network will be notified officially today of the option. The plan calls for the sale of the system to be completed about July 1.

"This is an option taken by a group of heavily financed persons who are interested in entering the broadcasting field," the spokesman said.

Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing purchased the system in 1960.

The system was set up in 1934 and covers 515 radio stations, to which it supplies news, public affairs and special-events programs.

Robert Hurleigh, president since 1957, is expected to continue in that post after the sale is completed, the spokesman added.

Mutual owns no radio stations, a situation which, the spokesman said, may be changed under new ownership.

The spokesman would not divulge the name of the corporation given the option, or the amount of money offered.

Texas Gulf Officers in Court

NEW YORK (AP)—After morning before Judge Dudley B. Bonad, hearing the case without a jury, Texas Gulf officers charged against officers and employees of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. opened Monday in federal court.

On April 19, 1965, the SEC charged 13 Texas Gulf officers, directors and employees with either buying stock or urging others to buy on inside information that the company had turned up one of the richest copper strikes ever made on the North American continent. The strike was made near Timmins Ont.

As the trial opened Monday, the strike in Canada had been made public. SEC lawyer F. E. Kennerly Jr. said, however, "This was a serious misuse of confidential information." At 10 a.m. April 16, 1964, Texas Gulf announced at a press conference that it had good faith and after the news of the ore strike.

GAS REMEMBERED

Queen To Note Canadian Role In Flanders

YPRES, Belgium (CP)—The Queen will honor one of Canada's most heroic exploits of the First World War on her tour of the Flanders battlefields Friday, when she visits the St. Julien memorial marking the first gas attack in the history of war.

It was on the sunny afternoon of April 22, 1915, that the Germans launched their deadly new weapon at a line of French colonial troops on the Gravenstafel Ridge, three miles north-east of Ypres, above the little village of St. Julien. Blindfolding and choking in the clouds of chlorine the French troops broke and ran.

Ypres, vital bulkhead to the Channel ports, lay exposed to the enemy, but the Germans, taken by surprise at the success of the gas, hesitated to press their attack. The crack 1st Canadian Division, holding the line to the right of the French, swiftly moved in to fill the gap.

For two days the 18,000 Canadians fought with desperate gallantry, launching a counterattack and retaking some British guns. Then, on April 24 the Germans directed a fresh attack at the Canadian line, expecting a second breakthrough.

KILLED 2,000 CANADIANS

But the Canadians hung on grimly in their makeshift cotton masks, emptying their rifles at the German attackers until three-quarters of the Canadians were overcome by the gas. Some 2,000 men died and were buried on the ridge.

The Queen, accompanied by King Baudouin of Belgium, will place a wreath here Friday as part of her tour of Commonwealth and Belgian war cemeteries and memorials in Flanders Fields.

Representing Canada at the four-minute ceremony will be Eldon P. Black, charge d'affaires in Brussels. The new Canadian ambassador to Belgium, Paul Tremblay, does not take up his duties until June.

The Queen ends her state visit to Belgium—first by a ruling British sovereign for 44 years—with a visit to the famous Menin Gate in Ypres. Beneath the massive arch carved with the names of 55,000 undiscovered dead—6,984 of them Canadian—she will hear buglers sound the Last Post.

Performed nightly by volunteer buglers, the Last Post ceremony is a personal tribute to the dead from the townspeople of Ypres. It was begun in 1928 and is intended to continue for all time.

DATSUN 1600

New Model Outperforms Specifications

A sports car that actually exceeds manufacturers' specifications in both top speed and acceleration is the hot and handsome Datsun 1600.

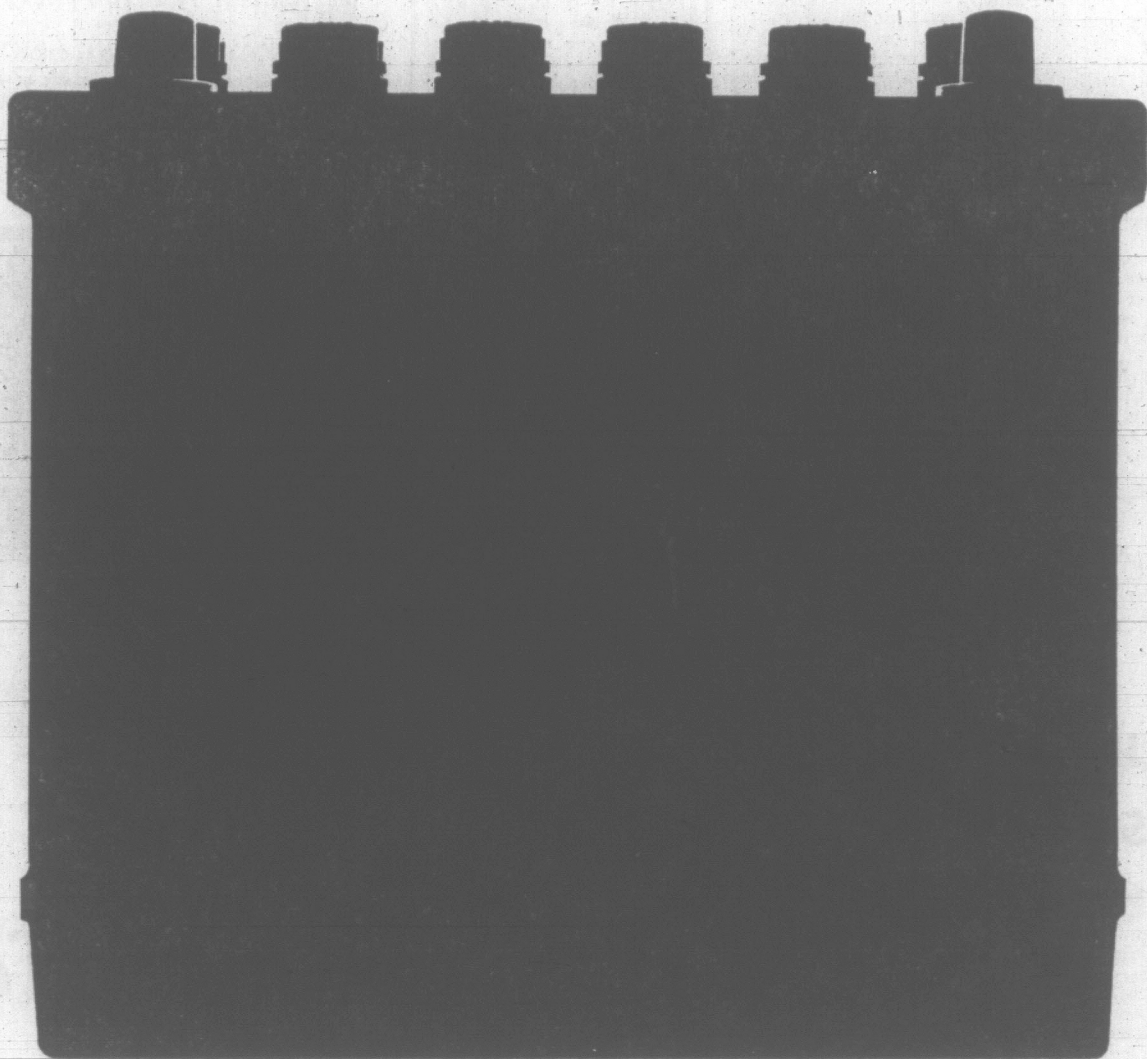

Powered by a 96 HP, 4 cylinder OHV engine with twin carburetors, the stock two seater was recently test driven in Japan by reporters for 11 automotive magazines. Tests took place at the Yatabe track near Tokyo.

Maximum speed over the circular course was 112 MPH. Average speed was 110.2 MPH as compared with a catalogue maximum of 106 MPH. From a standing start the Datsun covered a quarter mile in 17 seconds flat; it hit 62.14 MPH in 10.3 seconds.

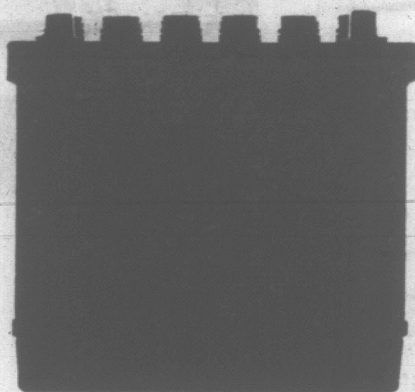

Now available in Canada, the new 1600 is a beautifully finished, luxuriously equipped and superbly engineered unit. Compression ratio is 9:1. Weight is 2,028 lbs. Mechanical features include front wheel disc brakes, cam and lever type gear steering and a four speed fully synchronized transmission. The 1600cc displacement engine develops 95 HP at 6,000 rpm.

Race wins for the model have been numerous. They include firsts in the GT2 and GT3 categories at the Japan Grand Prix and a first in the All Japan Hill Climb. Another first was scored in the Women's event of the U.S. Sports Car Club races before the car was officially in production.

A fastback coupe version of the 1600 now in limited production created a sensation at the recent New York Auto Show. "Car and Driver" called it "one of the most original exhibits." "Road and Track" commented, "completely original and very well finished—a combination of proven chassis and engine wrapped in an attractive package."

How do you know if you're paying too much for a battery?

Or too little?

HOME helps you decide.

If you read the ads, you probably know that a battery to fit your car can be bought for anything from around $8.95 to $40 or more. Confusing? Not when you know what to shop for. Keep in mind these points:

The big thing to consider when buying a battery is the ampere hour rating. This rating (in every brand of battery) is set by the Society of Automotive Engineers and is your one real clue to quality. It tells you the amount of power that the battery can provide for a given time. Ratings vary from 40 to 120 ampere hours and should be based on the 20 hour rate.

Now — how do you choose the rating that will give you the best service for your battery dollar? That depends on your car and your driving conditions. If you do a lot of cold weather driving, or if your car has all kinds of power assists, you'll need a battery with a high rating. But if you drive a car with few electrical accessories in a mild climate, a low priced battery should prove satisfactory. HOW TO BE SURE? Drop in and talk it over with your nearest HOME dealer. If you're in the market for a new battery, he can recommend a top-quality HOME EXEL replacement. You won't pay too much. Or too little. And you can charge it on your handy HOME credit card.

BIG, FOLKSY, LIVELY Audience Delight Grew and Grew With Oklahoma!

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

OKLAHOMA! By Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. Victoria Operatic Society at McPherson Playhouse.

A good many years have passed since the first national tour company out of New York brought Oklahoma! to Victoria. It was one of those theatrical experiences that remain vivid in memory and renders all the more difficult the task of an amateur company in presenting it even these many years later.

Victoria Operatic Society, however, has it made in a big, folksy, lively, charming way.

Monday night's opening took place before a packed house whose delight grew as the evening wore on.

Stage and musical directors Allan Purdy and Howard Denike have mounted a show that moves at an excellent pace almost all the time, backing it with a good orchestra that, while playing with vitality, was balanced and controlled at the proper level.

Harry Elsdon's Curley left little to be desired. He looked, acted and sang the part to the hilt, being blessed not only with a fine romantic baritone but an endearing personality.

Municipal Future Panel Topic

Representatives from area municipalities will debate the future of civic government Thursday following the annual meeting of the capital region branch, Community Planning Association of Canada.

Richmond Coun. R. A. McMahon and deputy municipal affairs minister J. E. Brown will speak on Is There Any Future in Municipal Government? at the planning seminar in First United Church hall.

The speakers and panel members will be heard at 8:30 p.m. with the branch's annual meeting starting at 7:30 p.m.

Panelists will be Ald. P. J. Frampton of Victoria, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox, Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee, North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cumming, Chairman Arthur Freeman of Sidney, Stanley Hiscock of Colwood and Langford and J. W. Keating of Sooke.

The meeting will be the fifth in a series examining major planning programs to handle the growth of capital region communities.

Among the cast of principals, Barry Grimshaw, Janet Senior and Norman Tyrrell also shone with particular brightness.

We are accustomed to good performances from both Miss Senior and Mr. Tyrrell who have made the most of many good parts and they romped with zest and most effectively as Ado and Annie and the peddler.

SURPRISE

But comparatively, Mr. Grimshaw is a newcomer to major musical comedy roles and he provided the surprise of the evening. A dominant, likeable figure as Will, he was a complete standout in the inevitable songs Kansas City and All or Nothing.

Anne Bailey, making her debut in Victoria, proved to have a sweet, small voice which did fair justice to Laurey's songs although her characterization was lacking in empathy and somewhat stilted.

Contrast is provided in the plot by the looming, psychotic figure of Jud Fry but Richard Litt does not really bring this off, able actor though he is. Among other unconvincing details were his clean, white hands.

The dream ballet by Wynne Shaw is one of the show's chief excellences. Sheila Mackinnon, a star of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, dances Laurey with great feeling and the fight sequence done by Paul Blakey and Art Penon is impressive.

LESS EFFECTIVE

Two numbers that drag are Many a New Day and Out of My Dreams, for the women's chorus, though it has a nice sound, is less effective on stage than the men's.

Other highlights are the rousing opening of the second act, the Oklahoma chorus itself, the fight between the real Curley and Jud, and the fast blackout scene changes for which the backstage crew deserve laurels.

Altogether this is a show for Victoria's centenary that other organizations will find it hard to top. It continues nightly through Saturday.

Mair to Address Unitarian Parley

James B. Mair, director of Sevenoaks Children's Centre, will be the theme speaker at a social action conference of the B.C. Unitarian Council Saturday and Sunday at 106 Superior Street.

A panel discussion and workshops are planned for Saturday. On Sunday delegates will hear a special conference sermon. Where the Action Is, by Rev. Marvin Evans, minister of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

Unhappy Lover Stabbed Wrong Twin

TOKYO (Reuters) — A songs about unhappy love, Japanese Romeo who tried to kill his Juliet and then commit suicide Monday provided a bitter twist of the old story of unhappy love — he stabbed the wrong twin.

The Romeo in the case was an 18-year-old farm laborer reported hopelessly in love with Eiko Namiki, one of a pair of popular Japanese singing sisters.

He approached the stage with a bouquet of flowers when the 26-year-old sister, who sprang to fame with songs about unhappy love, were performing in Kugayoshi City, western Japan.

One of the sisters bent to take it. Watched by 1,200 horrified spectators, he jumped on the stage, stabbed her in the stomach and arm and then ripped open his own stomach with a kitchen knife.

But instead of knifing Eiko, he stabbed her twin sister Yoko. He was in critical condition and doctors said he might not live to discover his mistake. Yoko's life was not in danger.

SEX EXPLICIT

'Banned Art No Worse Than Great Masters'

TORONTO (CP) — Paintings by the great masters such as Picasso and Rembrandt were just as explicit in sexual detail as drawings in an exhibition staged by former art dealer Dorothy Cameron, the Ontario Court of Appeal was told Monday.

Miss Cameron is appealing a conviction last fall on seven counts of exhibiting obscene art in her gallery. She was fined $350.

Defence lawyer Walter Williston said in his opening address that people around the world may be denied the right to view the works of the masters if Miss Cameron's conviction is upheld.

"It could well prevent art galleries, museums, libraries, universities and other similar institutions from exhibiting works generally regarded as a legitimate portion of the cultural heritage of the world."

In his judgment against Miss Cameron last November, Magistrate Fred C. Hayes said some of the nude figures in the drawings were engaged in acts which are illegal under the criminal code.

RAID GALLERY Last May, members of the Toronto morality squad raided Miss Cameron's gallery and seized seven drawings from the exhibition titled Eros 65.

Five of the drawings were by Robert Markle of Toronto and one each by Lawrence, a chaplain of Toronto and Fred Ross of Saint John.

Magistrate Hayes wrote in his 21-page judgment that the dominant characteristic of each exhibit is "the undue exploitation of sex."

Mr. Williston argued that almost any picture of a great artist could be obscene if "it is used in a disgusting manner."

"If some of Picasso's works showing intimate sexual detail were put on a billboard, then they would become obscene because they would be an outrage to public decency."

"And if some of Rembrandt's works were made into postcards, the seller could go to jail."

POLICE DRILL SQUAD APPLAUDED

City's Finest Show Form in Arena

A large crowd took a different look at the boys in blue of the city police force Sunday at Memorial Arena.

The men appeared far removed from beat-pounding, traffic and investigation duties as they paraded in the force's annual inspection.

Highlight of the displays was the snappy performance of the 15-member drill squad under Sergeant Keith Hollett and the appearance of the Vancouver City Police motorcycle precision team.

The motorcycle officers had to let air out of their tires to "zoom" through their weaving routines on the slippery arena floor.

YOUTH BAND

Another example of police work in the community was the appearance of the department's youth band.

Also on the program were Victoria Girls' Drill Team and a self-defence demonstration.

Long-service bars and medals were presented to 16 members of the force.

Inspector John Howe received a gold bar for 35 years' service and Inspector Charles Webb was presented a silver bar for 30 years on the force.

BRONZE BARS

Receiving bronze bars for 25 years' service were Insp. Richard Berry, Det-Sgt. Norman Bath, Sgt. John Perry, and Constable George Buckle.

Good conduct medals for 20 years' service were presented to Insp. Lester Clark, Sgt. Joseph Barlow, Sgt. Brian Ferguson, Sgt. Walter Calwell, Sgt. Donald Buie, Sgt. James Baxter, Sgt. Keith Hollett, Const. Ron Churcher and Const. Bonar Hanna.

Making presentations were Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Mayor A. W. Toone, RCMP Assistant Commissioner Frank Spalding and police commissioners Gordon Carter and John Martin.

Man's Shouting Heard for Block

A man who told police to get off his property April 1 was found guilty in central court Monday of creating a disturbance.

Sgt. Lorne Shandley testified shouting by Bernard Gillespie could be heard one block away. He and Constable Ken Horne were called to the Gillespie home at 1317 McNaughton in the early hours of the morning.

Gillespie was remanded to Thursday for sentence when he will be tried on a charge of assaulting Sgt. Shandley.

Vase for Director

Mrs. Janet Smith, director of the Victoria Theatre Guild's production of Dead on Nine, was presented with a glass vase by the cast at a party following the final performance Saturday.

Great Scott! Red Sox Have Bargain Slugger

SAM MELE

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—In this day and age when top-rated rookie prospects demand—and get—hundreds of thousands of dollars in professional football and baseball, it appears Boston Red Sox may have landed themselves a real home-run slugger for $10,000.

He is George Scott, a 22-year-old rookie who currently leads the American League in homers with 10, including seven in his last eight games.

Pitchers don't know what to throw to the six-foot-two, 200-pound Scott, who signed with the Red Sox four years ago.

"We heard he was a highball hitter," Minnesota manager Sam Mele said after Scott hit three homers in a four-game weekend series here. "But he hit a low pitch for one of his homers here Friday night."

"We haven't figured out how to pitch him. The pitchers will find out something to get him out and the word will spread. If they don't, he'll hit 340. He's a heck of an aggressive hitter."

Scott hit fast balls for a homer off Dave Boswell Friday night and another off Jim Grant Sunday. He hit a curve for his other homer, off Al Worthington.

Scott is like Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota in that he has so much strength, he can poke homers to the opposite field if he just meets the ball.

HIT TO REMEMBER

If Scott lives to be 100—that would be in 2044—he never will forget the last day of the 1965 season with Pittsburgh Red Sox.

"I knew I was one point down in the batting race coming up for the last time," Scott said on his visit to Minneapolis. "I was pressing for a base hit. The pitcher Thomas Arruda of Springfield hung a curve ball and I hit it out of the park."

With the base hit, Scott won: 1. The batting championship of the Eastern League at 319, one point better than team mate Chris Coletta, now with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

2. The home run championship with 25, one more than team mate Owen Johnson, who also moved up to Toronto.

3. The runs batted in title with 84, one more than Johnson.

4. The league pennant for Pittsburgh which needed that last 3-1 victory to nose out Elmira.

5. The league's Most Valuable Player award.

Student Slick Skeeter; Collects Seven Crowns

ST. JANVIER, Que. (CP)—Barry Boyce, 17, of Kingston posted an almost-perfect score at the 11th Canadian and 17th Quebec skeet championships which concluded here Sunday, winning the Canadian open and closed championships.

Shooting in occasional rain, gusty winds and even snow, the high school student shattered 492 of a possible 500 targets to capture the all-round title.

He also won the tough 410 title with a 97 out of 100 and the 12-gauge championship with 199 out of 200, accumulating what officials termed "a magnificent record."

"Nobody could touch him," said one official. "He seemed to adjust his strategy for the wind. I've never seen a smoother shooter."

Bill Rudz of Oshawa was the most embarrassed shooter at the three-day championships in this Laurentian community, 25 miles north of Montreal.

INVISIBLE INK TRICK . . .

Phantom Takes Books for Ride

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—This is a story about a horse that nearly always wins.

It is an invisible horse. The Bookmakers Association warned members Monday that tricksters are fleeing some bookies by winning with invisible horses.

Invisible horses? Sure. Read on.

"There seems to be a gang behind this," said an association spokesman, "and it's costing bookmakers money."

A swindler takes a betting slip furnished by all of Britain's legalized betting shops.

On the blank betting slip he writes down the name of a horse due to run in the next race.

On the same betting slip he also writes down the name of a horse that was won an earlier race at long odds.

But—the name of the horse that has already won it written in invisible ink. The film flim man then shoves his betting slip through the cashier's window, lays his bet, leaves the betting slip, and goes away.

Later, when the invisible ink becomes visible, he returns and collects his bet.

John Crosby, secretary of the Bookmakers' Association, said:

"In some betting shops, where there are timing machines, this kind of confidence trick would be impossible because each bet is timed as soon as it's submitted. But

HAIR THIS—CURLY TRIMMED ANYWAY

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—A British track star who refused to let his long, golden locks and sideburns be shorn was barred from running for Stanford University Saturday with the result that his heavily-favored team lost to the University of California.

"My athletic scholarship said nothing about hair," said Pat Morrison, 20-year-old freshman sprinter from London, in standing fast against coach Payton Jordan's request that he trim his hair.

The Stanford frosh team, one of the strongest the school has ever produced largely because of Morrison and another foreigner being on it, was upset by California 75-70.

Bernie Sought By Flin Flon

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, former hockey star with the Montreal Canadiens, has been asked to coach the Flin Flon Bombers next year.

Carl Edmonds, publicity director for the Bombers, made the announcement Monday. No details of the offer were released.

The Bombers finished last in the Saskatchewan junior hockey league in the 1965-1966 season.

Edmonds said he heard that Geoffrion had quit his job coaching the Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

B.C. 'Most Vulnerable' To U.K. Trade Whiplash

By JOHN MIKA

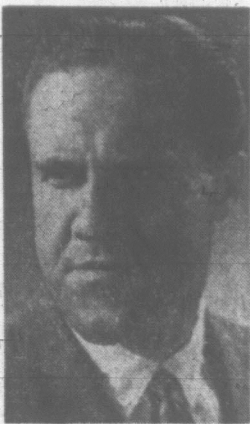

British Columbia may suffer if Britain's determined drive to export more products to Canada is frustrated, Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark warned Monday.

He was interviewed on his return from a three-week trip to England, Italy and Germany.

Mr. Loffmark said his most important discovery was the passionate determination of the United Kingdom to correct its staggering trade imbalance.

"Their greatest trade deficit happens to be with Canada and B.C. is very substantially concerned. Our province should make itself aware of Britain's very strong objection to our tariffs and particularly our anti-dumping laws," he said.

Mr. Loffmark said B.C. is one of the "most vulnerable" areas to the whiplash of any U.K. retaliation against Canadian duties.

(In the first 11 months last year, Canada exported $1.075 billion of goods to Britain while buying only $562.1 million from her. This included $203.9 million worth of goods shipped from B.C. and $48.7 million imported here from the U.K.)

SERIOUS DANGER

"Britain is most concerned about increasing its exports to Canada and if it is not able to do so, it could prove to be a serious danger to B.C."

"Last year, they put a 10 per cent surcharge on all imports and they might become more selective and we're the most vulnerable targets," Mr. Loffmark said.

He added this possibility appeared unlikely in view of past behavior "but this time they really are very determined and I don't think their officials put this on for my benefit."

"I was met on every occasion with heated criticism against Canadian tariff policy by officials and businessmen at every level."

DETERMINATION

Mr. Loffmark said the U.K. must be taken seriously in view of its national budget last week which underscored the determination of the exports drive. He said it put a heavy tax penalty on payrolls in "service" industries while providing a bonus incentive to "export" industries.

WINNER OF A TRIP TO OTTAWA

May 19 is Ron Fielden, 12, who was judged best schoolboy patrolman in Greater Victoria. Ron is in grade seven at McKenzie Elementary School. B.C. Kiwanis Clubs are sending about a dozen boys and girls to a three-day rally from points all across the province.

Impaired Drivers

Fined in central court Monday for impaired driving:

Richard F. Tyler, 310 Beckley, hit a meter in 1600 block Douglas Saturday night, .23 breathalyzer reading, fined $350 and prohibited from driving in Canada for six months.

John Gould, 1938 Trans-Canada Highway, rear-end collision April 18 at Helmcken and Trans-Canada Highway, fined $350 and prohibited from driving in Canada six months except for business.

Salvage Work Not For Navy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Navy "does not normally involve itself in salvage operations," Defence Minister Hellyer said Monday in answer to a Commons question about why the destroyer Gatineau didn't tow a burned-out trawler to port.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—Queens-Lunenburg) had asked why the destroyer left the trawler Karen B after the crew abandoned the ship April 1 and before the Halifax-based tug Foundation Vigilant arrived to take the trawler in tow.

A Russian tug beat the Canadian one to the Karen B and claimed salvage rights under sea law.

Mr. Hellyer said fire broke out aboard the Karen B when she was 100 miles off Halifax. A distress message was sent and the crew of 14 took to a life-raft.

Two RCN helicopters were dispatched from Canadian forces base Shearwater and the 14 and a dog were rescued. Gatineau was diverted to Karen B's position.

"The navy does not normally involve itself in salvage operations, however, leaving this to salvage companies who derive their revenue from this type of work and strongly object to the navy becoming involved in salvage operations thereby establishing claim by naval personnel to salvage entitlements," he said.

Joint Purchases Studied in Europe

Developing plans for a British-German-Italian partnership for purchasing materials from such resource-rich areas as B.C. may become a key factor in deciding whether the United Kingdom joins the European Common Market.

This was the opinion expressed Monday by Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark on his return from a visit to the three countries.

Mr. Loffmark met business interests in London, Milan, Bonn, Düsseldorf and Berlin trying to develop markets for B.C. goods and find ideas that could be used here.

In all three countries he discussed possible supply of B.C. ferro-alloys for the specialty needs of their steel industries and came across "an interesting situation in which none of them is large enough to make major purchases but they are considering it on a joint basis."

"I think it's of great interest that the Italians, Germans and English are thinking of this. It could bring them into B.C. on a joint-venture basis," he said.

"In fact, I think the possibility of such joint purchases would be a very important factor in deciding whether Britain will enter the European Common Market."

Guidelines Agreed For Act Revision

The Union of B.C. Municipalities and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Monday agreed so easily they wound up a planned two-day conference in half the time.

The conference set up the guidelines for a study intended to provide the basis of an overall revision of the Municipal Act by 1968.

President Reeve Alan Emmott of Burnaby led the 10-man UBCM executive which attended the conference while Mr. Campbell was assisted by his senior staff.

Together they agreed the study would be undertaken by the UBCM during the coming year through a three-man commission. Recommendations on broad principles will be made by the UBCM to the legislature's committee on municipal affairs.

The department will consider the committee's report in drafting the revision to be submitted to the 1968 session. The present act was adopted in 1957.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Budget with PBA

Arthur Mayse

One evening last week, I came up from working on a not-quite-finished dog run to take a phone call. The voice at the other end belonged to a young man by the name of Roger Hunter, who asked me to play master of ceremonies at a poetry reading.

"Things are getting sort of desperate," he explained. "We've tried everyone, but they've all got something on for Friday night."

We did too, but it wasn't important, so after warning Mr. Hunter what might be expected of his desperation choice, I took on the job.

Next morning, which happened to be rainy, a delegation called on me. Its members were in their late teens or early twenties. Two carried furred black umbrellas, one of which appeared to have large white letters printed on its fabric.

The group included a pleasant-looking Mod two years old from England, who carried an elegant silver-headed cane and wore a yellow flower in the buttonhole of his black coat; Mr. Hunter in a leather jacket; and the poet, Cyril McColligan, whose first book of verse is now on sale at a dollar in several Greater Victoria book stores.

Since a newsroom in forenoon space is a poor place for conversation, we took ourselves off in the rain to a nearby coffee shop. Whether out of solitude or because he feared to lose the last-lance emcee through a cold, the boy with the white-lettered umbrella insisted on holding it unfurled over my head.

Poets—the authentic ones—rarely look or act the part. Mr. McColligan, whose first published work is excitingly good, let his friends do most of the talking.

He is a close-coupled boy of 19, with an observer's eyes in a snub-nosed action face. His parents fetched him to Victoria as a child from Londonderry, Ireland, and he has been writing verse since he was seven years old.

A severe self-critic, he burns much of his work, and would have destroyed the poems now between covers had not his friends persuaded him otherwise. Appropriately, his thin, red-covered book is titled "A Spoonful of Ashes."

The reading was to highlight the first night of a week-long show by young local artists at Pandora's Box, a little old white house at 750 Pandora which weaver and bead expert Berta Rehm has given a new lease on life as a commercial art gallery.

Although we arrived early, about 30 students and working boys and girls were already viewing the paintings and handicraft pieces on display.

The gallery still carried a faint scent of charred wood from a recent fire which gutted a back room and knocked out the electricity. Old-fashioned kerosene lamps sat on tables. By the light of two of these, the oboe and bass guitar players who were to furnish background music helped Britten Haggerty, who was to give the reading, in his search for a missing amplifier part. Others ran a power line from a next door garage.

By the time the lost part was found, the audience numbered about 80, of whom all but a handful were in or not far out of their teens. Some drank pop from glasses ranged on a table. A very few smoked. All were casually dressed in the manner of their generation.

I located the poet, but he shrank from appearing before the crowd, and proceeded to lose himself. By this time, though, the missing amplifier part had been recovered, and we could get under way.

The music commenced. Britten Haggerty, a boy who wears his hair long, seated himself in a kitchen chair on the end platform. In a low, clear voice, he began to read. His listeners were very quiet—much more so than the average older group—and they seemed to appreciate what they heard.

So did J. Poet McColligan, a young man of his times, has a long, and probably a hard road ahead of him. But here is a promising, new talent, and I think he is lucky in his friends.

SURVEYS HAVE BEEN COMPLETED for widening of the Thetis Hill section of Trans-Canada Highway to three lanes this summer. Roadway will be widened to full 36 feet plus shoulders to provide an extra northbound lane for slow traffic up the hill and through the rock cut at its crest. Aerial photo shows the bottleneck which has not been relieved despite a temporary widening by black-topping the old shoulder to provide an eight-foot lane. Meanwhile, highway engineers are still analyzing preliminary surveys for widening of the road to a four-lane route from the Thetis overpass south to Douglas Street but no work has been set. Worker Import From Jamaica Not B.C. Idea

Neither the provincial government nor the B.C. Federation of Agriculture has asked for import of Jamaican harvest workers, spokesmen said today.

C. E. S. Walls, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said the Canadian Federation of Agriculture made a holding request to the federal government to include B.C. in its arrangements for importing "gang labor."

The federal government last week revealed it was working out a formula for bringing West Indians to Ontario, Alberta and B.C. as harvest help.

But B.C. Agriculture Minister Frank Richter denied that his department has asked for Jamaicans.

He said the provincial government believes there is sufficient unemployed manpower in Canada to meet needs if help is provided in moving workers from one part of the country to another.

Mr. Walls said his organization agrees with this view but is anxious that there be an assurance an acute shortage of picker help facing the Okanagan area be met one way or another.

He said the federal government was in the process of establishing contract conditions for importing Jamaican workers to Ontario farms and "they were requested to keep the door open in regard to these contracts so that it would be available to B.C. if it was needed."

"The request was made by our national organization, not by us or by the provincial government," Mr. Walls said.

Cheque Charges Admitted by Man

A man who used worthless cheques to get cash and building supplies pleaded guilty in central court today to two charges of false pretenses.

Gordon Ray McKay, 2265 Florence Lake Road, was remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

Court was told he received cash and goods totalling $40 from Langford Building Supplies, 940 Goldstream Ave., when he presented cheques April 10 and 18.

3-Month Term

A man who wandered into the city police station early today was later jailed three months for vagrancy.

Stanley Lien pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court.

Gaglardi in Dark On Freeway Plan

Decision on the final location of a proposed north-south freeway in Greater Victoria may take months or even longer.

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said this morning he has no clue where the freeway will finally run or how long it will be before the location is chosen.

The metropolitan traffic study one year ago recommended one location and this has been under study by the highways department.

A government official said some additional data has been received by the Toronto research company that made the report but more was to come.

Mr. Gaglardi said when his department comes to him with a recommendation, "we will go from there."

Concern has been expressed by Saanich planner Tom Loney on the proposed route of the freeway near the municipal hall.

The report recommended a Patricia Bay Freeway roughly paralleling the existing road.

This would be joined near McKenzie Avenue by the Trans-Canada, a rerouted northwards from Portage Inlet.

Tugboat Races May Be Revived For Pageant

A chance to restore to Victoria tugboat races of steamship days is being investigated by Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Edward A. MacFayden told a tourist trade group meeting Monday a suggested marine pageant should have as a main feature a tugboat race, which would draw ships to Victoria from distant ports.

There hasn't been one here in about 35 years.

Pat Frumuto told the group that if such races are revived they could "eclipse the Swiftsure (yacht) race as far as being a thrilling spectator sport."

Two Injured In Collision

A collision at Yates and Quadra Monday night sent two drivers to hospital.

Patrick Murphy, 31, of 1003 Richmond, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with undetermined injuries, and Albert Miller, 58, of 1439 Myrtle, was released after a check-up. Police said their cars were badly damaged.

City Yard Wins $930,000 Tug Contract

A $930,000 contract to build two 1,200 h.p. tugs for Island Tug and Barge Ltd. has been awarded to McKay-Cormack Ltd. shipyard.

ITB president Arthur Elworthy today said the 85-foot vessels of steel construction have been ordered for delivery next February and March.

He said the capital expansion of his company is combined with a replacement program for the older wooden-hulled vessels and extends to scows.

Three new ship scows are being delivered by Yarrows Ltd. and three more by Bel-Aire Shipyard Ltd. of Vancouver, at a total cost of nearly $800,000.

At the same time, Island Tug is completing the $650,000 Island Warrior from a hull purchased in the east.

MORE TO COME

Mr. Elworthy said further expansion is also planned to start in the current fiscal year.

Asked whether this conflicts with the federal government's suggested capital expansion cut-back, Mr. Elworthy said the new work is justified by the growth of business, which the new vessels are being built to handle.

RIDER UNHURT

Horse, Truck In Mishaps

An over-zealous horse and an over-zealous dump truck figured in two Saanich accidents Monday.

The horse, carrying 13-year-old Brenda Quan, 5108 Pat Bay Highway, bolted from a field at Beaver Lake Park into the path of a car on the Pat Bay Highway.

Both rider and horse escaped serious injury in the resulting collision. But both were shaken up along with the driver of the car, Paul M. Beere, 746 Gorge Road West.

There were no injuries in the dump-truck mishap either, but an estimated $1,500 damage was done to homes and wiring in the Blair Avenue-Birchwood area off Shelbourne Street.

Driver Derrill Brown, 2017 Fernwood, was dumping a load of gravel when the box on the big truck caught overhead power and telephone wiring.

A lamp standard toppled and two power poles damaged. Power to three houses was cut off and plaster was pulled from the walls of houses where lines were attached.

Saanich Ready To Take Over 3 City Parks

Improvement Promised By Curtis

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich should acquire the three city-owned park properties within the municipality, Reeve Hugh Curtis said today.

He told a noon luncheon meeting of the Victoria Electric Club at the Crest Motel.

"Until as recently as several years ago, Saanich park development and the supervisors and crews necessary to carry out such work were virtually non-existent."

"Today, however, sees a very different situation. We have an excellent parks superintendent and we have managed to build up a capable and efficient parks work force."

IMPROVEMENTS SALE

"Saanich feels quite certain that it could carry on from this point and bring about major improvements at all three sites."

"From the city's point of view I trust this makes sense. As long as these lands are secure for parks use it is realistic for the municipality in which they are located to undertake their improvement."

The three city-owned parks in Saanich are Mount Douglas, Gorge Park and Elk-Beaver Lake.

For many years, maintenance and development has come under the Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee.

"While I am sure the joint committee system has worked well in the past, I'm of the personal opinion that the time has now arrived when Saanich should acquire all three park properties from the city."

COMPLICATED

He said the recent water rights hassle over Elk-Beaver Lake, involving Victoria, Central Saanich and the provincial government, has complicated previous discussions between Saanich and Victoria.

Tentative agreement had been reached for the city to dedicate the area as a park with Saanich undertaking park development.

Reeve Curtis said because of recent developments, "I'm afraid... that it will be some considerable time before we can carry our plans to a satisfactory conclusion."

"The only assurance I can offer is that we shall pursue our plan."

He added that the city has received a Saanich proposal to purchase the nine-acre Gorge Park.

NOMINAL SUM SET

"And since Victoria didn't pay anything for Mount Douglas Park in the first place, I'm rather hopeful this transaction can be concluded on the usual nominal sum basis."

On another subject, the reeve doubted Saanich will pursue municipally-owned or developed swimming pools in the immediate future following ratepayer rejection last December.

However, there did appear to be "considerable" support for ice surfaces in Saanich and this will be given "serious consideration" in the next few months.

ICE CREAM PRICES GOING UP

The price of ice cream and ice milk is going up.

Three Vancouver-area dairies have increased their prices two or three cents a pint and consideration is being given by a fourth company.

In Victoria, Island Farms Dairies Co-Op Association said prices are under review and an increase is indicated.

Palm Dairies said there has been "no increase yet."

The three mainland dairies who have raised the prices are Dairyland, Jersey Farms and Palm Dairies. A fourth company, Shirley Farms, was considering an increase.

Girl's Big Hope Finds Family With Big Hearts

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A Japanese girl who wrote to the Victoria Times asking if someone would give her an opportunity to "experience your city" has been offered a home in Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, 1071 Gosper Crescent, responded.

Old Masako Endo, a 19-year-old girl living at 59 Takora-cho, Katsushika-ku, Tokyo, replied that she would "so like" to accept their hospitality.

But it wasn't as easy as that. Mr. Collins had to go through the formalities required by Canadian Immigration. He had to swear an affidavit guaranteeing that Masako Endo would be given a home in Victoria for at least three months.

Mr. Collins swore an affidavit and the top copy was sent to the Canadian Embassy in Tokyo. With it he enclosed a character reference.

The second copy was sent to Masako Endo.

PAY WAY

The stipulation, of course, is that Masako pay her own way to Victoria and, if necessary, her way back home.

"Otherwise, we are prepared to give her a good home," Mr. Collins said. "We are going on vacation up Island early in June and we would be happy to take Masako with us."

"We would like her to be as

Cigarettes, Candy Taken In Break-Ins

Candy, cigarettes and clothing were stolen in three break-ins reported to police today and Monday.

About $10 in coin was missing from Capital City Bowladrome, 966 Yates, after the front door was forced overnight.

The money came from soft drink and cigarette machines and from a cash register which was left open.

A large quantity of candy was taken from the Colt League baseball concession at Topaz Park Monday afternoon.

Ken Harper, 3229 Quadra, told police he saw a group of youths running from the stand at 4:05 p.m.

NAVY UNWINDS LONG ENOUGH TO REVEAL SECRET WEAPON

Great Balls of String! The Spies Are Fit to be Tied

By TERRY IZZARD

The navy's latest secret weapon was revealed for the first time Monday.

The weapon—designed to make Canada's warships entirely self-supporting—was demonstrated aboard destroyer-escort St. Croix.

Fiendishly simple, it proved invaluable in holding the ship together during high explosives tests just completed off California's south coast.

Although the defence department has previously kept mum about "Operation Shoestring," apparently all Canada's fighting ships have been equipped with the device.

Technically speaking, it ties together the loose ends of complex equipment that can so easily fall loose under heavy attack.

In simpler terms, it's a ball of STRING.

But don't laugh!

St. Croix's commander, John S. Hertzberg, can vouch for its effectiveness.

It solved numerous knotty problems last Thursday when the ship was subjected to a high-powered underwater blast in U.S. testing grounds off San Diego.

It prevented light fittings jumping from mountings, held breakable crockery in place... secured drawers that would otherwise have fallen out... and stopped the commander's telephone from leaping off its hook.

What it didn't help was the ship's deep freezer which broke down under the force of the blast.

As soon as the ship tied up Monday afternoon, ratings began unloading 2,000 pounds of meat and vegetables which were beginning to thaw out.

Modifications will be carried out to all ships' freezers as a result of the St. Croix's experience.

In addition, the tests—designed to discover flaws in the ship's design—turned up some 200 minor faults.

Oh, yes! About that string. Not a word to anyone—there are spies everywhere.

DEAR ABBY . . .

This Guy Is Not Worth the Bother

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 and Howie is 22. We aren't "engaged" or anything like that, but we sort of have an understanding. Howie never lets me know when he's going to take me out. He just drops in and expects me to be sitting home waiting for him. And I always am. I've even turned down other dates to wait for Howie. How can I break him of this habit? When I ask him to please telephone in advance he says he doesn't like to use the phone.

ALWAYS AVAILABLE.

DEAR ABBY: If Howie knows you're always available, why should he bother to call? When he tells you he does not like to use the phone, tell him YOU don't like to use the phone. And the next time he drops in, manage to be "out." If you lose him, you lose him. Life with the likes of Howie doesn't sound too peachy to me.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's parents live in a town 30 miles away. We see them often and talk to them on the phone a couple of times a week. All is congenial. The problem? Perhaps twice a year her folks will call just as we are sitting down to dinner. Tonight I had served up a two-inch filet mignon with all the trimmings, something we can't afford any more often HUNGRY. DEAR HUNGRY: Why get so steamed up over something that happens only twice a year? If the in-laws call during your dinner hour, go ahead and eat, and if your wife wants to let her dinner get cold, that's her privilege.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A MARRIED MAN": Why don't you give him something his whole family can enjoy? Like his freedom from you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Keep the Ball Rolling Anyway

Because of the abundant evidence that cigarette smoking is damaging to health, many women are anxious to give it up but have a very difficult time doing so. From the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association comes the suggestion that you reach for the knitting needles instead of a cigarette.

This is a wonderful idea for several reasons. In the first place, it is a well-recognized fact that smoking is partly a nervous habit. High strung, nervous persons are likely to reach for a cigarette at the slightest suggestion of stress. Also physicians have long known that there is something soothing about working with the hands.

One thing which worries women about stopping smoking is the fact that many folks gain weight when they quit. The main reason is that they reach for candy or a cookie instead of a cigarette. Actually nibbling can be the result of nervousness or emotional strain just as smoking can be. A hobby designed to keep the fingers busy will calm the nerves and lessen the temptation to reach for a snack or a cigarette.

One woman wrote me that she had conquered the nibbling habit by leaving the house immediately and going for a very brisk walk any time she was tempted to raid the refrigerator or the cookie jar. All this might lead to a helpful chain reaction.

You stop smoking, create something pretty, get some outdoor exercise and lose weight. This therapy is especially apropos today when knitted clothes are so popular and so fashionable. Every cigarette not smoked represents a few more rows on the garment in the works, and every nibble not eaten represents some weight lost or at least some not gained.

It certainly seems that excessive smoking, overweight, and lack of exercise make one more susceptible to lung cancer, heart trouble and other diseases. Also, knitting and crocheting are relaxing and creative hobbies! This applies to men also. Many famous men have found knitting good for frazzled nerves.

Speaking of men, I am offering my Tubby Hubby Diet for a few days. I recently published my Nine-Day Reducing diet for women and thought the men in the family might like to even things up. If you would like to have this Tubby Hubby Diet which gives you a loss of from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Norwegian Dances Featured at Tea

The sights and sounds of Scandinavian dances and folksongs seemed to transform the Britannia Legion Hall into a setting of fjords, ice and evergreens, for a time, when the Ex-Service Women's Branch No. 182, Royal Canadian Legion, held a tea.

The sights and sounds were provided by young Norwegian dancers, supervised by Mrs. A. Gilstein, and their accompanying accordionists.

Wife of the deputy speaker of the House and a former service woman herself, Mrs. William Speare opened the affair, and seated at the head table with her were president Mrs. D. Walker, vice-president Mrs. D. Temple, convener Mrs. E. Chappell and co-convener Mrs. N. Barton.

One of the main attractions was a home baking stall, convener by Mrs. K. Croft and another was a booth of fancy-work. The event realized more than $275.

Make Your Own Cake And Decorate It Too

By Penny Saver

I remember one of my father's birthdays. Hoping to please him, I made him a cake and to the best of my powers, decorated it with appropriate letters in goopy, pink frosting. Thinking back, the cake was quite a mess, as I didn't have any proper equipment or experience. It was a childish fantasy that I could ever produce such a masterpiece as I had seen in the baker's window.

One does not have to be a professional to produce lovely effects with frosting decorations. Even a child could create lacey frills and flowers with the equipment I found.

First of all, there's the icing pen. This gadget is a plunger mechanism that allows you to control just the right amount of icing that you want to frost your cake. These pens sell in one shop for $1. The end is threaded so that design heads fit easily into place and stay put as you decorate the cake.

This shop also carries a very wide supply of frosting heads. There are 42 different heads in all, each selling for just 35 cents. These are made of metal, and fit the icing pen above. Each head, of course, is made to form a different pattern with frosting. Beautiful cake decorations can be created with just a few of these heads. Experiment with some.

Do you want to know where Penny found these? Give her a call at 382-3131.

Monday will be a "red letter" day in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Harris, 347-A Gorge Road West, when they celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary. The couple was married on May 16, 1906 on Pender Island, and moved to Victoria in 1923. Their two attendants, Miss Mary Hamilton and Mrs. G. S. Harris, still make their homes in Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Harris have four daughters, Mrs. J. R. (Dorothy) Genge, Mrs. T. G. (Margaret) Penny, and Mrs. Mark (Nora) de Goutiere, all of Victoria, and Mrs. Frank (Irene) Grant, Fulford, Salt Spring Island. They also have 14 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. To celebrate the event, "open house" will be held Saturday in Centennial United Church Hall for the couple, from 3 to 5 p.m. A family dinner will be held Sunday, in the Atkins Road home of Mrs. de Goutiere.

Tea Becomes 'Garden Party' With Floral Decor and Dress

One of the major signs of spring in Victoria is its flowers and gardens. At their May-time tea, Saturday afternoon in the Odd Fellows Hall, members of Colfax Rebekah Lodge decided to "grow their own," with tiny coral bells making a brilliant splash of color on the head table, and small nosegays of other spring blooms "growing" from moss on the guests' tables. The guests followed suit, wearing floral hats of every description, color and size, from tiny flowered whimsies to large petalled chapeaux. The main attraction of the affair was a home-baking booth by district deputy warden, Mrs. E. W. Green. Greeting the guests with Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Green was Mrs. L. Rossiter, noble grand.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a full-length gown of pea de soie that was enhanced with a cathedral train and bodice of Swiss lace. Her veil misted from a headpiece of seed pearls and heather. She carried yellow roses in her bouquet and

HONOR GUARD

As the newlyweds left the church they were greeted with a guard of honor, formed by the groom's fellow officers in HMCS Saguenay. The best man and usher were also from the same ship.

A three-tier wedding cake, made in HMCS Shelburne, N.S., where the bride was formerly stationed, was the focal point of the head table when the wedding party gathered in the wardroom of HMCS Saguenay for a reception. The groom's sword was used by the young couple to cut the cake.

A toast to the bride's happiness was sent from Vancouver by her uncle Mr. A. R. Kueng. The principals' parents attended the ceremony, also the groom's sis-

Chamber to Keep Flower Festival

Victoria's wilted Spring Flower Festival should be held again next year, the tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce decided Monday.

Members endorsed a festival committee recommendation that the festival be kept going despite its shortcomings.

It was suggested that a critical analysis prepared by festival chairman A. G. Coning be used as a guide to next year's organizers.

The only additional suggestion made by tourist trade members was that fewer events be scheduled. It was reported that $4,300 of the $5,000 city of Victoria guarantee had been spent to date.

HARBOR IMAGE

Jaycees Frown On City Needle

Fears that a proposed observation needle towering over the Inner Harbor will spoil the Victoria image were expressed at a tourist trade group meeting Monday.

The structure is proposed as a modified Seattle space needle by private developers wishing to give tourists a vantage point for 360 degrees over the heart of the city.

Joseph Richards, Junior Chamber of Commerce delegate to the senior chamber's tourist trade group, said Jaycees have doubts about the venture, which he felt would conflict with the Legislative Buildings.

Committee members voiced caution against speaking out on a subject about which little is known.

NEED INFORMATION

It was suggested that until firm details of the proposal are presented, expressions should be reserved.

Charter manager Earl Dickson said the directors had been asked for an opinion on the tower, which is under study.

Members agreed to ask the promoters to meet with them to outline their plans.

Between 75 and 100 petticoat pilots to visit Victoria June 27 will get a distinctive souvenir to take with them on their long flights from Seattle to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the annual U.S. powderpuff derby.

The classic long distance flight for women pilots is scheduled to cross the continent diagonally this year and is planned so that competitors have a day's outing here before takeoff.

Tourist trade members voted $25 for ditty bags containing something appropriate for each pilot and co-pilot and each bag will have the well-known seagull emblem of the tourist bureau.

Pat Frumento was named to inquire into arrangements for a Victoria-Port Angeles exchange day sometime during centennial celebrations.

Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce approves of a suggested visit of high school bands and a champion basketball team from the American city.

Other group events are under consideration, Centennial Square is suggested as a focal point.

Psychiatrist Urges Church For Poor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)

Western psychiatrists might do well to prescribe membership in "evangelical religious groups" to some of their patients, especially those in low-income categories, a McGill University doctor said today.

Dr. Raymond Prince, assistant professor of psychiatry at the Montreal school said such groups are typical examples — within Western culture — of a kind of "cone of authority" pattern that also characterizes psychiatric treatment systems of certain primitive people in other parts of the world.

Such systems, although in sharp contrast with methods employed by Western psychiatrists, apparently work satisfactorily, the doctor told the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

He explained that in the Western world, current treatment of psychiatric problems places great emphasis on "insight and independence" — that is, the patient is encouraged to seek understanding of his present anxieties in terms of his childhood experience. And he's encouraged to do this without dependence on anyone else.

U.S. SPACEMEN SET FOR SHOT NEXT TUESDAY

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The next pair of astronauts climb into their Gemini 9 spaceship today and rehearse the complex dual countdown that will send them rocketing aloft next Tuesday to test skills needed to land on the moon.

Before the three-day adventure concludes, navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene Cernan is to take a record-duration space walk and use a rocket-powered back pack.

Command Pilot Thomas P. Stafford is to steer Gemini 9 on several rendezvous attempts with an Agena satellite and jolt Gemini 9 into a new orbit by firing the 16,000-pound-thrust Agena engine while their spacecraft is hooked up with it.

EDGELOW ON SEWERS:

City Shouldn't Pay for Others

Victoria should not be expected to pick up the tab to solve the sewage problems of other municipalities, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said Monday.

He was replying to weekend criticism that his memory was slipping when, as acting mayor, he said last week that Victoria's sewer system is adequate.

"I am reluctant to get into an argument with anyone working for improvement of the Gorge," Ald. Edgelow said. "But I feel I must make the facts clear."

"At the panel referred to (by David Southall, vice-president of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association) I said too much sewage and effluent was going into the Gorge. I also said that what was going in should be eliminated as soon as possible."

Ald. Edgelow said his earlier remarks were not directed against efforts to clean up the Gorge.

CO-OPERATE

"My only concern is that the sewage costs of other municipalities should not be borne by the city," he said. "While the city will co-operate in any way it can to find the solution to those problems, the citizens of Victoria, who have paid for a sewerage system, should not be required to pay again — except for improvements to its own system such as the extension of ocean outfalls."

A special engineers' report on sewer needs for the Saanich Peninsula and the capital city region has indicated that the total cost to solve all sewer problems up to 1985 will be about $23 million.

Ald. Edgelow's original statement indicated that although the city had been prepared to share the cost of the survey it would be reluctant to share a major capital cost for the benefit of other municipalities.

"My original statement was that although we were prepared to share the costs of the survey we were, as a city, in no way committed to share other costs," he said.

"We do have to extend our outfall into the sea at Clover Point and we have earmarked money in our capital budget for that project."

Menu Magic

from the TEST KITCHEN

Hostess Tip
There's a bit of the artistic chef in everyone. If you don't believe it, plan a do-it-yourself sundae making session next time you entertain. The inspired creations built by folks who won't set foot inside a kitchen are amazing.

More the Merrier
Offer as wide a variety of sauces as possible. But keep preparation time down by purchasing some good ready-to-serve sauces or choose from a countless number of jiffy sauces you can mix up in next to no time.

For the Chocolate Fans
Chocolate of course is high on the list of favorites. Make a smooth sauce by combining a (8-ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate pieces with 1/2 cup whipping cream. Cook over very low heat, stirring frequently until the chocolate melts. Add vanilla or a teaspoon of powdered instant coffee... Delicious!

Make-it-Maple
Another Canadian flavor favorite is maple. For it, we boil 2 cups of maple syrup with 2 tablespoons butter, for about 3 minutes. Cool and stir in 1/2 cup evaporated milk and 3 tablespoons slivered almonds. Good over top coffee ice cream.

Fruit Medley
When fresh fruits are in season, almost any fruit combination meets with instant success. The bright red color and fresh flavor of crushed sweetened strawberries teams beautifully with vanilla ice cream. Not so common but just as good, party-pink rhubarb, cooked until tender and sweetened, makes a hit over strawberry ice cream.

Warm Cherries
Speaking of fruit combinations, this one is delicious served solo. If you haven't time for a Sundae tray. Just melt 1/2 cup red currant jelly in a saucepan or chafing dish. Drain a 15-ounce can apricot halves and add to the jelly along with a 15-ounce can bring cherries. Heat gently and serve warm over vanilla ice cream.

4.18-Mill Tax Boost Ordered in Ladysmith

DON NORBURY AND FIND

Skindiver Finds Corroded Revolver

SIDNEY—A corroded revolver and holster has been found by a skindiver near Sidney wharf at the foot of Beacon Avenue. Don Norbury, of Satellite Fish Co., said the revolver was turned over to him by a skindiver from Nanaimo Divers' Services Ltd., who found the gun when diving for an article dropped from his boat.

Mr. Norbury has given the gun to Jim Mason, a collector, of 9705 Eastview, in Sidney.

The revolver has rusted into the holster and it is impossible to determine the calibre, although Mr. Mason thinks it may be a .22 or .32.

Metal skeleton of the butt is still intact but the wooden handle has disappeared. The leather holster is well preserved despite its years in the water.

LADYSMITH SEEKS TWIN AMONG QUEBEC TOWNS

LADYSMITH—This Island town Monday night put itself up for adoption by Quebec.

Council received an invitation to become a twin of a similar sized city in Quebec.

Mayor Marcel D'Amour of Hull said in a letter the idea of making twins of Quebec cities and counterparts in other provinces is a centennial project. It is a way English and French speaking communities can get to know each other better, he said.

Ald. Jack Keno moved Ladysmith "adopt" the idea. A response to the invitation will be made through the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Maffeo Out Of Hospital

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo of Nanaimo is now at home after spending more than month in Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital recovering from a severe head injury and subsequent heart attack.

The mayor suffered a fractured skull March 26 when he slipped on ice while curling in an inter-city challenge match in Courtenay.

He suffered a heart attack after undergoing emergency brain operations and was listed in critical condition for some time.

Mrs. Maffeo said her husband will recuperate at home for some time before resuming his duties.

By DON DISGALL.

LADYSMITH—The town mill rate is going up 4.18 mills to 50.59.

Council approved the rate at a budget session Monday night.

Total expenditure for 1966 is $361,133 compared to $295,450 last year.

The general rate goes up 2.7 and the school rate increases 1.90.

Only cut is .42 in the hospital rate.

Coun. Cochrane said the increase will bring in $65,703 additional revenue.

MILL TO HELP

"Ladysmith is a nice place in which to live but it would be good if we had more industry to help meet our tax bill.

"I hope the new mill coming into the town will help carry the burden," he said.

The councillor was referring to the new Ladysmith Forest Products sawmill to be built at Smelter Beach.

Ladysmith residents this year are paying a special levy to meet the cost of the new $102,000 sewer now nearing completion.

Chief expenditures in the record budget are education $124,286; public works $63,514; sanitation $12,000; waterworks $45,160; protection to persons and property $18,800; administration $33,200; social welfare $57,200; and debt charges $50,150.

U.S. Seamen Treated

NANAIMO (CP)—Two 19-year-old U.S. Navy seamen, both stationed at Keyport, Wash., were rushed to hospital here by plane after being injured aboard their ship.

Robert Thomas and Raymond Winbar were released after treatment for back and neck injuries but doctors said one may have to undergo further treatment when he returns to his Washington base.

They were injured when a cable broke on board the torpedo-retrieving vessel on which they were working. The boat was operating off Nanaimo Bay north of here.

Mark One Up for the Longhairs!

Long hair and tight clothing for boys may find a place in the classroom under changes in regulations under consideration by rural Saanich school board.

Recommended amendments to the dress code were outlined to trustees Monday by Donald C. MacKinnon, principal of North Saanich junior secondary school.

Mr. MacKinnon said it is recognized by District 63 principals that boys' hair styles have changed from short to long in recent years.

"And I defy anyone to find trousers that are not tight and sit on the hips," he told the trustees.

changes colorful shirts will be permitted. In view of the many shirts now designed to be worn over the trousers, tucked in shirts won't be strictly necessary, except for shirts with tails.

According to the influence of the Beatles, the principals have recommended that boys' haircuts now be of a "conventional and reasonable" fashion. At present, short haircuts are stipulated.

Again, no extremes will be permitted, "and we will still be able to tell a fellow to get a haircut if it's hanging over his eyes," Mr. MacKinnon said.

A few changes are anticipated for the girls.

The principals left in the clause outlawing tight-fitting skirts and sweaters in the classrooms, but Trustee Nora Lindsay thought this should be deleted and "no exaggerated clothing" inserted.

Mrs. Lindsay commented that the majority of girls' skirts today could be considered tight and she cited baggy sweaters as being more "in" than tight sweaters.

Escapers Caught In Stolen Car

ALBERNI—RCMP here apprehended two escapers from the Brannen Lake school for boys, near Nanaimo.

They were picked up in downtown Alberni riding in a car that had been previously reported stolen.

FIRE LEVELS HOUSE IN SECOND OUTBREAK

DUNCAN—Fire struck twice at the home of Stan Tooshley Monday night, finally burning it to the ground.

Tooshley, his wife Mary and their six children were out driving when fire first hit the house on the Indian Reserve on Tzouhalem Road.

South End volunteer fire department attended about 8 p.m., but could not save the inside of the house from being gutted.

Firemen salvaged what furniture they could and damped down the building.

But early this morning, about 2:45 a.m., fire flared up again and the house was burned to the ground.

Cabinet Reorganization Payoff to Quebec Grits

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson reorganized the government departments in order to pay off political debts. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker charged in the Commons Monday.

He tore into the proposed new setup of the cabinet during the debate on a resolution which preceded first reading of the government reorganization bill. It established five reorganized departments, adds to a sixth, and creates a new portfolio. It received first reading Monday night after a five-hour debate.

Mr. Pearson pointed out that it was the most extensive change in the administrative organization of the government to be made in peacetime.

He had announced the major shuffle of his cabinet coupled with the reorganization of government departments last December. Ministers with their staffs have been anxiously waiting for the new setup to be confirmed by Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker denounced the reorganization. He accused the prime minister of making sweeping changes in order to placate French-Canadian demands that Quebec Liberals be given important portfolios in the government.

'NEW GUARD'

The Opposition leader cited as examples the "new-guard" Liberals from Quebec, Jean Marchand and Jean-Luc Pepin.

Mr. Marchand becomes minister of manpower and Mr. Pepin minister of energy, mines and resources under the new legislation. The manpower department will include immigration and important employment operations formerly handled by the department of labor.

Mr. Diefenbaker argued that Mr. Pearson in order to keep French-Canada happy — where the Liberals have solid support — had to ensure that new French-Canadian ministers got key roles in the cabinet. This had been accomplished by shaking up the government's organization.

'One of Those Things' May Have Saved a Life

A city man waded into Shawinigan Lake Sunday and saved a 10-year-old girl who jumped into water over her head.

J. C. S. Fox, 1857 Fern, termed the rescue "just one of those things."

He saw the unidentified girl get a push away from a wharf in a kayak.

"She couldn't swim and she must have become afraid. She jumped out of the kayak but the water was over her head."

Mr. Fox said he pulled the girl out of five feet of water.

RARE BIRTH AT ZOO

A Pink or Blue Ribbon for Gibbon?

There was a blessed event on Dufferin Road Monday but nobody knows whether blue or pink booties are in order.

The new arrival was a gibbon, the kind of long-armed ape that's so good at miming. But he, she or it is still too shy to be typed as sex. The birth took place at Rudy's Pet Park.

The baby, terrified by the outer world, is clinging to its mother as if it was glued to her abdomen.

Zoo owner Rudy Bauersachs says the mother, Coco, will have to put up with this burden for at least three months, if the baby lives.

HIGH MORTALITY

Infant mortality is high among the tail-less gibbons when they are in captivity. Mr. Bauersachs says he knows of only one baby gibbon born in a zoo in Canada, which survived. That was at Winnipeg.

(Stanley Park Zoo has recorded the births, and subsequent deaths, of two. Zoo officials there said a gibbon reared entirely in captivity would be relatively rare in Canada, but is not uncommon in some other countries.)

CRITICAL PERIOD

Mr. Bauersachs said the first week for the baby gibbon is a critical period. But he was heartened today when the infant began to take milk from its mother.

The proud mother is having a life of milk and honey — the main part of her post-natal diet — with portions of bananas, oranges and grapes added to her usual mash and lettuce.

She'll need all her energy because the baby, so far hairless and only eight inches long, will grow quickly and even after he lets go his death grip on his mother, will stay close to her for at least six months of his 25-year life span. The parents are only seven and looking forward to lots of togetherness.

There will be no family portraits for some weeks to come. Mother is trying to keep the baby hidden until it grows some hair and she's sure it's an ape. And the father, Jimmy, is in solitary.

TOO HELPFUL

This isn't because he is liable to hurt the baby. He's very excited about it. But in some zoos fathers have tried to be too helpful, fighting with the mother for the privilege of looking after the offspring. And with all this monkeying around the infant has died of neglect.

Father will have his day later — and some problems. How do you teach your youngster to swing through trees when you've got no tails?

SUMMER PERIODS

New Seer No Stranger To Gonzales

The new weather forecaster in Victoria won't be new to Gonzales Heights.

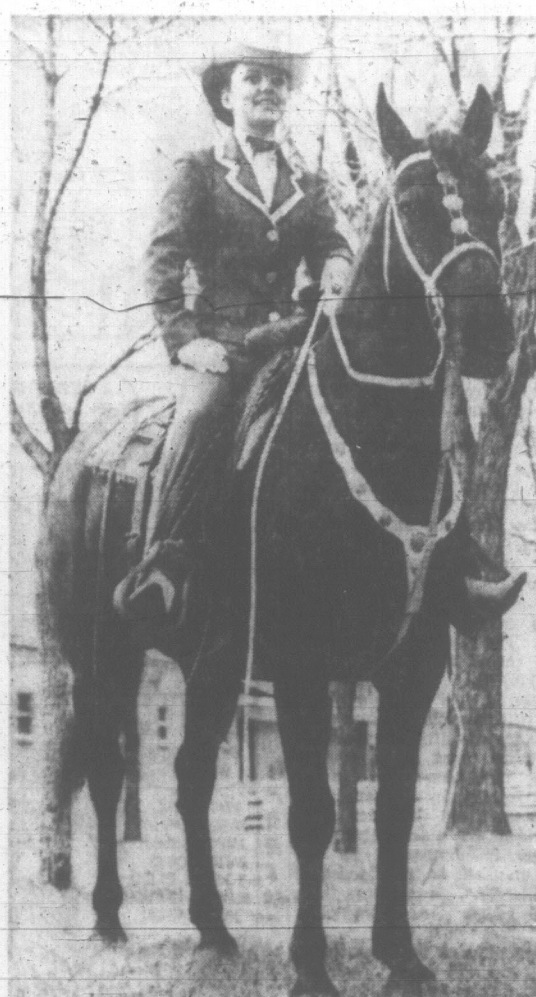

A. F. McQuarrie has worked here during past summers on forecasting assignments.

The chief of the Calgary weather station since 1948 will take over from William Mackie, local weatherman for the last 15 years, in July.

Mr. Mackie has been promoted to superintendent of observation services for B.C.

Mr. McQuarrie joined the meteorological service of the federal government in 1941 after graduating from the University of Alberta, his home province.

He served on several RCAF stations on instruction and forecasting duties.

QUEEN of the Calgary Stampede this year is 19-year-old Betty Wright, an Edmonton girl who is the daughter of a Victoria couple, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Wright, 547 View Royal Avenue. Betty is the flag bearer for the Edmonton Sheriff's Posse. She was chosen Stampede Queen over 13 other contestants Saturday night.

WORTH EXPERIMENT

Two Rose Seedlings Are Worth Saving

By HILDA BEASTALL

As a general rule, home gardeners find much pleasure in saving seed of the plants growing in their gardens, but the results as seen in the plants thus produced are so variable that disappointment is usually reported.

However, a few hints on one kind of seed which is worth saving and growing may encourage more gardeners to experiment. The Christmas and Lenten roses (both belong to the genus Helleborus) cross so freely that their seedlings are extremely variable.

In a garden which grows these plants to perfection, self-sown seedlings are often discovered in the vicinity of the parent plants.

If they can be left where they are until a pair of true leaves are formed, there will be every possibility of their surviving when moved into an adjacent spot to give them more space for development. They will flower in their third year, and can then be selected for color and two years later, for habit.

Should no seedlings ever appear, it might be a good idea to save one seed pod on the plant for sowing under controlled conditions in a seed box or seed pan.

Look over the plant critically, and select the old flower which has the fullest-looking pod.

REMOVE OTHERS

Remove all the others to conserve the plant's energy and allow the chosen pod to remain on the plant.

By the end of May, begin to watch the pod daily, for ripening will be progressing.

Eventually, the pod will appear to be dry, and, before it opens, it should be cut from the plant.

It is a wise precaution to drop the pod into an empty glass jar or a drinking glass to prevent the loss of seed when it is finally discharged from the pod. This will be in a few days, according to how ripe the pod is at time of picking.

Sow the seed at once in a pan or a box of dampened peat moss and sand, or leafmold. Keep it outdoors with a little shading so that the contents cannot become dry.

Germination should take place within a few days, and the seedlings may remain undisturbed until next spring if the protection of a coldframe is provided for winter.

When the seedlings flower, there may be one or two particularly good plants which will be worth keeping as plants grown from your own garden seeds.

If you have an extensive woodland setting, you might want to keep all the plants, enjoying the differences appearing in them as they develop.

Catholic Aristocracy Links Must Be Cut, Says Professor

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Roman Catholic church in South America has no future if it simply aligns itself with the "corrupt landlords" who are keeping the people in poverty, says Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, professor of religion at Stanford University, California.

Dr. Brown made this statement at a luncheon of clergy and laymen in the Empress Hotel sponsored by Greater Victoria Council of Churches and the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria.

He was a Protestant observer at the Second Vatican Council in Rome last year.

At question time, Rev. Albert King of Metropolitan United Church asked:

"To what extent is the Vatican Council trying to associate itself with revolutionary movements in the world today?"

Dr. Brown replied that the Vatican recognizes "that we live in a revolutionary and changing world."

"The council is seeking to identify itself with people in need and it recommended that some agency of the universal church be set up for the world-wide promotion of justice for the poor and Christ's kind of love for them."

NEEDY REGIONS

"The role of such an organization will be to stimulate the Catholic community to foster progress in needy regions and social justice on the international scene."

Dr. Brown said many bishops from South America attended the Vatican Council and they found much in common with Catholic bishops from other lands.

"There is a high degree of activity among the South American bishops and a growing recognition of the need for change."

Dr. Brown was introduced at the luncheon by Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton and thanked by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, who invited Dr. Brown to Victoria, was in the chair.

Dr. Brown said the Vatican Council recognized that all churches should be better informed about others.

GRIEVOUS SINS

"We must discover in prayer that the things which divide us are grievous sins against the body of Christ."

He said it was significant that the council closed with a document urging that the Catholic church offer itself as "a servant to the world."

"The imagery of a servant church is the proper imagery for all Christian churches to day."

Dr. Brown gave a public lecture in First United Church Saturday night.

In an interview, he said the Vatican Council's document showed a willingness to learn from the world as well as to speak to the world.

At one point it said: "We should listen to the voice of God . . . in the voice of the times."

He added, a 250-bed hospital for children would only be vention of such men as Cardinals Leger and Suenens, the document stresses the importance of conjugal love."

Dr. Brown said the Second Vatican Council could have concerned itself solely with internal affairs, such as reform of the liturgy and a fresh look at seminary education.

"It is significant that on the last working day of the council, the Declaration on Religious Freedom was promulgated and the council concluded on a note of concern for others."

Children's Hospital Will Have to Wait

A long-range plan to develop a general hospital for children at Queen Alexandra Solarium is being disputed by hospital officials in Greater Victoria.

The plan was announced last weekend by Solarium past president Col. A. D. Murdoch.

But the worth of the scheme was criticized today by Joseph Casey, chairman of the Victoria and District Hospitals Planning Council.

Col. Murdoch said the solarium society "dreams" of building a 250-bed general hospital for children on the society grounds adjacent to the present hospital. (It now serves only children with prolonged illnesses.)

Mr. Casey says such a plan has never been discussed by the hospitals council (of which the Solarium administrator John Holdstock is a member). And, says Mr. Casey, "this is not seen in the future."

Col. Murdoch says children "belong in a children's hospital." He would have children sent there for both acute and long-range treatment.

COSTLY CENTRES

Mr. Casey says the two acute hospitals in this area, St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee, have the costly treatment centres and equipment necessary to treating acute illnesses. It wouldn't make economic sense to attempt to duplicate these facilities.

He said hospital planners generally take the stand that children in need of acute care should be treated at the central hospitals. Eventually however the Solarium could be expanded to take in all children who require extended care of a rehabilitative nature.

Royal Jubilee has accommodation for 30 children now and plans an improved 40-bed pediatric centre in the future. St. Joseph's has a 73-bed pediatric centre. All of the special services available to adults in the extensive acute hospitals are also available to children.

BIT OF A DREAM

Pat Blewett, assistant administrator at St. Joseph's, said the creation of a third acute treatment hospital specifically for children "is a bit of a dream." Recent trends in North America have been to centralize acute care facilities and services, he said.

He added, a 250-bed hospital for children would only be required by a far larger district than this.

Col. Murdoch said he admits he is not a hospital expert and was looking at the project from the standpoint of children who are often afraid of the clinical atmosphere of acute-care hospitals.

"But I still think it's a good idea."

He thought that if a hospital were created on Solarium grounds to tend to all children's illnesses and injuries, it could operate in conjunction with a medical school at University of Victoria.

'OUT OF LINE'

Mr. Casey said he thought the Solarium was doing a commendable job but the Murdoch proposal was "a bit out of line."

Other hospital officials, who could not be quoted, pointed to the difficulty of existing hospitals having to raise funds to meet expansion needs.

They believe that duplication of expensive services by public funds at a third acute hospital is a matter inappropriate for discussion until existing hospital plans have been met by ratepayers.

Lectures Set On Gun Safety At Royal Oak

Saanich school trustees Monday approved a request to hold a series of lectures on gun safety at Royal Oak junior secondary school.

The lectures will be presented by Ray McDougall of the Victoria Fish and Game Association.

About 15 boys of junior school age will be enrolled.

The course consists of four lectures on gun safety, plus an exam set out by the B.C. Game Department. This is followed by three supervised shoots—pistol, rifle and shotgun.

The 6,000 "graduates" of the course to date have had no reported shooting accidents, and the sponsors hope to extend their program.

Cross-Pollination of Cherry Assist for Today's Gardener

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If today's gardeners are more successful with fruit crops, they should bow in the direction of Ernest E. Hall, a retired Dominion Experimental farm horticulturist living in North Saanich.

Mr. Hall, 76, is the man who found out the best ways of pollinating and cross-pollinating cherry, apple, peach and pear trees to ensure the fruit would set. This entailed 20 years of research.

He developed new varieties of apples and did extensive research on strawberry culture — especially on varieties best suited to the Saanich Peninsula.

He also introduced to Vancouver Island the thornless loganberry cane now widely grown in Saanich.

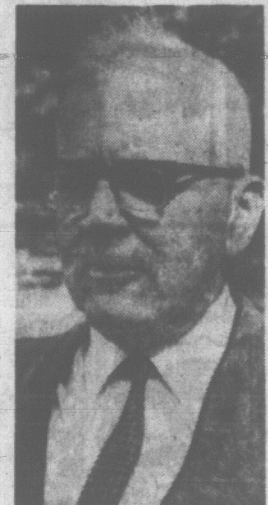

Mr. Hall, of 1990 Dean Park, joined the research farm in 1922 when agriculture on the island was a more flourishing industry than now.

FRUIT FARMING

Dairy and fruit farming were the mainstays of the industry and loganberry plantings had reached commercial status.

But it took a long time for loganberries to reach B.C., said the plant expert who took an active interest in the growth of plantations there.

He recalled that the logan-

HALL keeps busy

berry, believed the result of a chance cross between a raspberry and the Pacific Coast trailing blackberry, was first discovered in the garden of Judge J. H. Logan, of Santa Cruz, Calif., in 1881.

Berry plantations gradually spread northward and by 1910 there were a few plantings in the Pacific Northwest. In 1920 they were well established in Saanich.

The yield in 1927 was almost as high as it is today — nearly 1,000,000 pounds, he said.

In 1935, the crop produced 1,225,000 pounds.

TRIAL PLANTING

In the 1940s Mr. Hall heard of a thornless loganberry cane in cultivation in Oregon. He ordered about 500 plants and distributed the canes among the growers for trial.

They proved a success and gradually replaced the prickly cane because they were easier to handle.

Some of the big growers in Mr. Hall's active days were Neil Lamont, Philip Holloway and Harry Tanner. The latter was president of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

He remembers when Mr. Lamont started the loganberry wine industry in 1927.

The original recipe for the wine was a home-made one furnished by Mrs. Holloway.

FLOWER BEDS

Since his retirement in 1955, Mr. Hall has kept up his interest in plants. Evidence of this is neat flower beds and shrubs in his garden surrounded by dogwood trees.

In a way he has become a "sun worshipper."

In the winter I live in California where it is warm and sunny," he said. "In the spring I return to Saanich which I consider the most beautiful place in Canada."

Silver Threads Display How Members Can Adapt

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What shall we do after we retire?

Victoria Silver Threads are showing us what can be done. They put on a splendid display of handicrafts at the Centennial Centre Thursday and demonstrated how they have adapted themselves to new occupations.

There were fine wood-carvings, delicately-colored china-ware, hand-drawn plaids and scarves, picturesque oil paintings, tasteful arrangements of flowers, intricate needlework and some very competent examples of basketwork and leatherwork.

Most of the Silver Threads who have learned these arts and crafts had never attempted them before retirement.

ENTHUSIASM

"Their enthusiasm is remarkable," said Mrs. William Logie, who superintends 17 classes with the assistance of 37 volunteer instructors.

"It proves that most people are still very adaptable at 65."

One particularly ingenious exhibit was a colorful representation of dogwoods made with broken glass collected from the beaches at Ross Bay, Clover Point and Twin Beaches.

This was the work of Mrs. Robina Ward and many visitors asked if it was for sale.

But the majority of art students were too proud of their work to want to part with it.

None of the work displayed on the second floor was offered for sale. But downstairs there was a bazaar at which more than 80 per cent of the exhibits were sold.

KNITTING, CERAMICS

They included knitting, sewing, ceramics, novelties, basketwork — and choice flowers grown by the gardening club under the direction of William J. Pynn, a past president of Victoria Horticultural Society.

All afternoon visitors swarmed through the bazaar and the handicrafts display upstairs.

From the oil painting class, directed by Harry Lay, came an unusual portrait of Christ by Mrs. Frances Fuller; a Rocky Mountain scene by Mrs. H. Leno; a view of the English Lake District by Mrs. T. C. Raine, and a rustic study by J. L. Sledge, who is handicapped by arthritis.

Mr. Lay himself contributed a striking character study in oils entitled Felicia; Mrs. J. C. Haynes an English woodland scene copied from a calendar.

A fine example of wood-carving was a leaping salmon by Harry Shipman, who instructs this class, and Mrs. J. Locke demonstrated the art of china-painting.

ARRANGEMENT

A choice arrangement of gladioli, narcissus and lilies was displayed by Mrs. J. Setchell.

Mrs. S. Copeman presented work by the loom-weaving class which she started last September, including a fine woven plaid by Mrs. A. Gregory. The class comprises six women and one man.

"We have only five hand-weaving looms," Mrs. Copeman said, "and we need more as others would like to join the class."

Membership in the Silver Threads Centre is now climbing towards 3,500 and membership in the arts and handicraft classes is growing daily.

ASK ANDY

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Stanley Crawford, age 8, of Huntsville, Ala., for his question.

How Long Does an Olive Tree Live?

In Jerusalem there stands an ancient tree. Its wide and stubby trunk is gnarled with grooves and twisted ridges. Slender branches with dainty leaves of silvery-green grow near the top of the trunk. The old-timer is an olive tree and it has lived for at least 2,000 years.

In ancient days olive trees were grown in the Holy Land and in other warm, dry countries around the Mediterranean Sea. The Spanish brought olive tree shoots to the New World. In 1769 they were planted in California and some of them are still growing. Though these olive trees will be 200 years old in three years, they are no more than teen-agers. In the Old World many olive trees are 1,000 years old and older.

One of the oldest olive trees grows in Jerusalem by the Golden Gate to the Garden of Gethsemane. It has been there 2,000 years. And many other olive trees that were growing in the days of the New Testament are still there. Their ancient trunks are gnarled with knobby ridges, but their boughs are clothed with fresh greenish-grey leaves. And out in the dry and dusty deserts there may be even older trees—for no one can say how long an olive tree may live.

Its savory-tasting olives are classed as fruit—and no other fruit tree expects to live as long as the olive tree. The wood of its sturdy trunk is very hard and long-lasting. Insects and germs attack and destroy many other trees, but they do not often harm the olive tree. If the air is warm and dry and the soil is right, it stays in good health and grows for ages.

For Salads and Soaps

A new tree is grown from the shoot of an olive tree. It is tended for a few years in a nursery and then set out to grow in an orchard. Its slender boughs bear leaves shaped like little fishes. Their tops are greyish-green and their undersides are greenish-white. When the breezes ruffle them they look like shimmering streams of silvery-green. After about seven years the tree bears a few olives. At the age of 30 it is 25 feet tall and ready to bear a full harvest of fruit.

The greenish olive blossoms are too small to be noticed. The little green fruit grows through the summer and is ready for picking in the fall and winter. Most of them are picked when still green. If left on the tree the ripe olives turn blackish-purple.

The harvested olives must be treated to take away their bitter flavor. They are soaked with lye and salty water and some soak in bubbly baths to make them turn dark. The fattest olives are canned or pitted and stuffed and packed into jars. About half the crop is crushed to squeeze out the golden oil from the olives. Olive oil is rich and easy to digest. It is fine for salads and cooking and some is used to make soaps.

The Wonderful

World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

When you pick a pet, be it a mynah bird or a skunk, certain principles apply. First, it should be healthy. This should be confirmed by a visit to the veterinarian preferably within 24 hours. Second, it should be young. While the animal should not be an infant (its chances of survival are too slight) it should still be young enough to be able to make the necessary adjustments to its new environment, and companions. Older animals are difficult, often impossible to tame.

DEAR DR. MILLER: This question is about my parakeet, Ruffles. How do you know if a parakeet is pregnant? And another question. She stands on one foot sometimes and sometimes she stands on the other one. What's the matter with her?

—B.B.

DEAR B.B.: Chances are poor that Ruffles is actually pregnant, though she might someday get around to laying an egg or two. But then again, she might not, so don't count on it. I'm sure she would be too shy to let you know about her intentions — if she has any.

As for her shifty attitude, this isn't an indication of trouble. But if she were to stand on the same leg all the time, it would indicate there was something wrong with the other one.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My puppy, Citronella, had a measles shot several months ago. Now I'm worried because I read where they are just now starting to use the measles vaccine on people. Could my puppy have been given that shot as an experiment to help people? She didn't get sick from the shot or anything like that. But I hate to think she had the shot just for people. What can you tell me about this?

—H.T.

DEAR H.T.: The measles vaccine your pup received was to protect her (tem-

DEAR DR. MILLER: Just thinking about having my dog spayed. Does it deprive a dog of anything if she is not bred?

—P.A.

DEAR P.A.: Yes, puppies. In regard to the ovariohysterectomy — spay — it is unnecessary for her to have a litter first. However, there are advantages in allowing her to go through one estrus (heat) cycle before surgery,

'Gerda Never My Mistress'—Sevigny

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierre Sevigny says he once spent the night in Gerda Munsinger's Montreal apartment but that the German woman never was his mistress.

"It was the last time I ever saw her," he said about the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960.

As the former Conservative defence minister testified to the Munsinger inquiry, his wife sat among the spectators.

Mr. Sevigny said Mrs. Munsinger "never was my mistress" and that as long as he knew her in 1959-60 "she was not a prostitute, call-girl nor a thief."

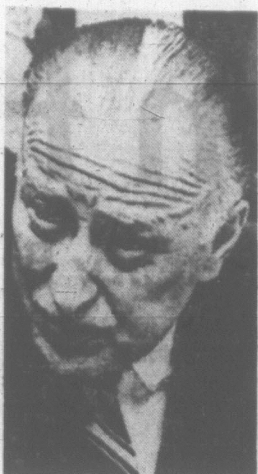

The word mistress implied "a kept woman, by a married man. Mrs. Munsinger was never this to me."

Mr. Sevigny said that at the request of an old friend, Jacqueline Delorme, he went to see Mrs. Munsinger, arriving about 12:30 a.m. Nov. 27, 1960.

'I FELL ASLEEP'

"We talked at great length. I felt it was the last time I would ever see her. Because I was very tired I fell asleep. When I woke up it was in the early hours of the morning. I went back to sleep again. When I woke up, I called a taxi and took the train from Westmount station to Ottawa."

The Munsinger inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Wishart, Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, has received RCMP reports describing Mrs. Munsinger as the mistress of Mr. Sevigny, a common prostitute, petty thief, passer of bad cheques and self-admitted Soviet espionage agent before she came to Canada in 1955. She left this country Feb. 5, 1961.

Mr. Sevigny said he told Mrs. Munsinger he would do his best to help her get her German passport renewed so she could return to her homeland.

He said he never was blackmailed over his relationship with Mrs. Munsinger. She had never asked him for information about defence or government matters.

"Since this is the crux of this complete investigation, I wish solemnly to say under oath that never at any time whatsoever did I have cause to suspect or think that Mrs. Munsinger would be connected in any fashion with any alien group, any subversive group or representatives of foreign nations which since have become hostile to us."

Mr. Sevigny declared that "if

I suspected then or now that, anyone near me was in any way connected with the enemies of my country I would be the first to advise the proper authorities and ask for corrective measures."

TOLD DIEFENBAKER

Earlier, former justice minister Fulton testified that in his view a security risk had been created by Mr. Sevigny's relationship with Mrs. Munsinger. He had reported the facts to then prime minister Diefenbaker.

He considered Mr. Diefenbaker's judgment in keeping Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet had been vindicated since there had not been at the time or subsequently any breach of security.

He said the RCMP reports about Mrs. Munsinger did not raise any questions in his mind about Mr. Sevigny's loyalty but did raise questions about Mr. Sevigny's discretion.

Mr. Sevigny said he was called before Mr. Diefenbaker, Dec. 13, 1960, in Mr. Fulton's presence. He had been "stunned and stupefied" to hear Mrs. Munsinger was suspected of being a spy.

"The prime minister insisted in no uncertain fashion that I stop all communication with Mrs. Munsinger. I told him I had stopped in January and that it was only by extraordinary circumstances I had met her in November, 1960. I told him I would not communicate with her again and I never did."

He said he knew that if Mr. Diefenbaker or Mr. Fulton had any doubts about his loyalty "they would not keep me one minute longer in the cabinet."

FULTON
... discretion

"I was never blackmailed," he testified.

"I am not lacking in physical or moral courage. It's all very nice for the RCMP to say what might happen and that this was a classic example. But it takes two people to make a contract even if it is a blackmailing contract."

"I don't scare easily and I'm not one to be blackmailed."

Mr. Fulton said he felt Mr. Sevigny wouldn't yield to blackmail.

Mr. Sevigny said he didn't know Mrs. Munsinger still was alive until he talked to her on the phone March 11, 1966.

"I was so surprised I dropped the telephone on the floor."

Miss Delorme said she called Mrs. Munsinger the same day and was told by her "you know very well I'm too dumb to be a spy."

Miss Delorme said she told Mr. Sevigny in January, 1960, that Mrs. Munsinger was dropping his name and the names of other important people.

'WAS FLABBERGASTED'

Mr. Sevigny had been flabbergasted and determined not to see her any more.

Mr. Sevigny said Miss Delorme also told him Mrs. Munsinger might be becoming sentimentally attached to him. From then until November, 1960, the relationship was limited to "chance occasional meetings and some telephone calls."

He said he found out Mrs. Munsinger used his name as a reference on her citizenship application.

"Her main fault was to embellish situations, to add romance to the simplest situation and to exaggerate."

"She had a natural tendency to exaggerate... she might have said more than she should have."

'Literary Jackals' Under Sharp Fire

LONDON (UP)—The Romans cautioned, "de mortuis nil nisi bonum" (of the dead, nothing but good).

Protests that this propriety has been maliciously ignored in the case of two eminent British authors—Evelyn Waugh and Somerset Maugham—have just aroused the season's most unsparing literary brawl.

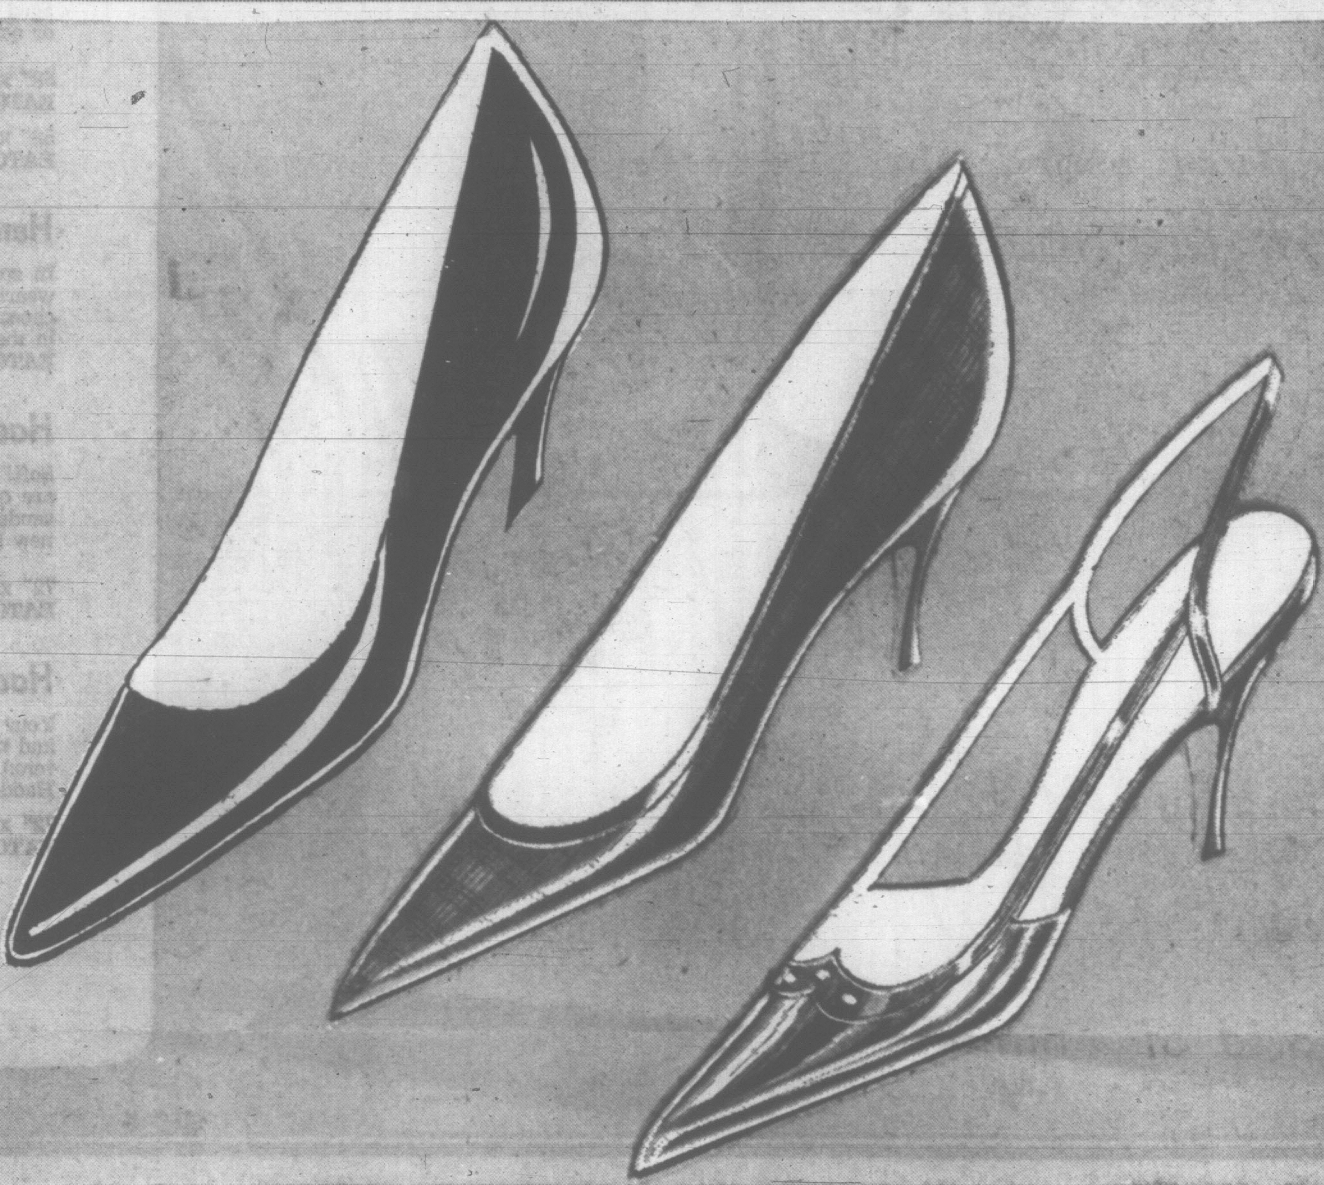

The first of five "obituaries" of living Britons, was published today in The Daily Mirror (circulation 5 million) as Auberon Waugh's reprisal against what he feels are ignorant and impudent death notices about his father.

Auberon, 26 years old, began his retaliatory campaign with a scornful "obituary" of critic Malcolm Muggeridge, who had written deflatingly of the elder Waugh, after the novelist died April 10.

The younger Waugh (whose own novels include "The Foxglove Saga") also attacks "Literary Jackals" in an article in the current Spectator magazine. He was especially indignant about an obituary in Time magazine describing his father as "a flabby old blimp" in his last years.

At the same time, The Mirror's much-quoted columnist Cassandra (pen name of Sir William Connor), joined in with an attack on author Beverley Nichols for disclosing unsavory details about Somerset Maugham.

In a series just begun in The Sunday Express, Nichols has related Maugham's homosexual affairs, a lapse that was an open but unpublished secret during the author's lifetime.

Civilians Mowed Down After Blast in Saigon

SAIGON (CP)—Six South Vietnamese civilians were shot and killed in Saigon today when a Viet Cong mine explosion triggered a half-hour barrage of machine-gun fire by American military policemen.

Five of them—four women and a child—were killed in the street along which the shooting took place. Two of the women died when Americans pumped bullets into an open truck carrying dock workers.

The sixth was shot in hospital where he was visiting a friend. Hospital officials said a large number of bullets entered the hospital but no one else was hit.

Twenty-one South Vietnamese and eight Americans were wounded in the barrage.

The incident began when a claymore anti-personnel mine exploded and blew in the glass front of the Suzie Wong tailor store.

A spokesman said a man was seen jumping into a taxi as the mine exploded. An American policeman fired at the taxi, starting a chain reaction of shooting along the street where other Americans guarded U.S. billets.

One American guard saw a truck moving toward him, carrying a gang of dock workers. He fired into it, and a jeep-mounted American machine-gun then opened up on the truck.

The truck tried to reverse but was blocked by a U.S. military bus travelling behind it. The machine-gun burst tore into the bus, too, injuring the South Vietnamese driver and at least one American serviceman.

PREGNANT WOMAN SHOT HUDDLED ON PAVEMENT

SAIGON (AP)—A pregnant South Vietnamese woman described from her hospital bed tonight the terror and confusion she and other civilians experienced when U.S. machine-gun bullets ripped into their truck and left some bleeding in a rain-splattered Saigon street.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Thom, 23, mother of two children, told how she and two dozen other employees of a construction firm were riding to work this morning when a Viet Cong mine exploded and U.S. sentries started shooting.

The truck halted at an intersection near the Brink Hotel, a big U.S. military billet in downtown Saigon, she said.

As the shooting erupted, workers panicked, Mrs. Thom said. Some scrambled from the truck, some ran, others tried to hide beneath the vehicle.

Bullets tore into the metal and bounced off the rain-wet street.

A tracer round hit Mrs. Thom in the side as she huddled on the pavement. She lay there nearly 30 minutes, until an American officer carried her to a doorway. She was taken to hospital later.

The woman said she did not see anyone shooting, but did see many American soldiers with guns.

Mrs. Thom was one of 13 South Vietnamese wounded taken to Saigon city hospital. One of them had been hurt by the mine explosion; the others were hit by bullets.

Three of them, all women, died. Five men and five women were expected to recover.

Mrs. Le Thi Dan, 42, mother of five boys and one girl, said she huddled with several others in the back of the construction workers' truck.

Bullets killed two women alongside her and wounded her three times—in the left ear, behind her right shoulder, and in the lower back.

Le Van Sam, 48, father of eight children, was driving another truck filled with textile workers, when he heard the shooting. He stopped the vehicle three blocks from the scene. As he climbed from the truck cab, he was sent spinning by a bullet that broke his right arm.

A taxi driver, Nguyen Viet Tan, 46, said he heard a blast like thunder and a flash like lightning. Then came more flashes and a bullet ripped through a door of his taxi and into his hip. He drove home operating the gas pedal with his hand, he said.

There were some casualties reported but the accounts gave no precise toll of the injured.

New Quakes At Tashkent

MOSCOW (UPI)—A series of earthquakes rocked the ancient city of Tashkent again today, sending residents and tourists running into the streets as houses weakened in a quake exactly two weeks ago came tumbling down.

There were some casualties reported but the accounts gave no precise toll of the injured.

Fourth Visitor During Evening

OTTAWA (CP)—J. L. O'Brien, chief commission counsel, said today at the Munsinger security inquiry that Pierre Sevigny was the fourth male visitor to Gerda Munsinger's apartment on the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960, and that the first three paid a fee.

Mr. Sevigny, former Conservative associate defence minister, said he learned this only recently.

He repeated that the only reason he had seen the German blonde that night was that he had been asked to see her by a mutual friend, Jacqueline Delorme.

Mr. O'Brien said Mrs. Munsinger "suggested that you come up and continue what you call an intimate relationship."

Mr. Sevigny said he had called her from a restaurant but could not recall the exact conversation.

"She was quite gay on the telephone," Sevigny said. "She said she wanted to see me."

Mr. O'Brien said that when Mrs. Munsinger was supposed to have been destitute she had gone with a man to Western Canada. He asked whether Mr. Sevigny now knew that Mrs. Munsinger was a prostitute.

Mr. Sevigny replied that information he now has indicates that Mrs. Munsinger resorted to prostitution during her last weeks in Canada "in order to live when her back was to the wall."

He said he didn't know at the time that she was resorting to prostitution.

Mr. O'Brien asked whether Mr. Sevigny now is aware that Mrs. Munsinger took another trip with another man to Switzerland for Christmas.

Jules Dupre, Mr. Sevigny's lawyer, objected that he never saw any such statement in the documents supplied to the commission nor had he seen anything to show that Mrs. Munsinger actually took the western trip. The subject was dropped there.

Mr. Campbell asked whether that carried the implication of sexual relations.

"I suppose it had," Mr. Sevigny said.

He maintained that he told Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker that the situation between him and Mrs. Munsinger was not such as the RCMP described.

Mr. Campbell said Mr. Fulton had testified that Mr. Sevigny denied any improper relationship.

"That is right, I denied it," said Mr. Sevigny.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, presiding at the inquiry, said Mr. Fulton had told the inquiry that Mr. Sevigny denied having sexual relations.

"Did you?" he asked Mr. Sevigny.

"I never denied at that interview that I had had a physical relationship."

The questioning on this point followed efforts by Mr. Campbell to have Mr. Sevigny say whether he ever had sexual intercourse with Mrs. Munsinger.

New York Market Rebounds

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rebounded strongly in heavy trading today from Monday's steep loss.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.46 points to 896.26. It had been ahead 12.03 an hour earlier.

It was a reversal from Monday's action, which saw the Dow Jones average plunge 16.03 points in the worst loss since the assassination of President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

The advance was broad-based with blue chips gaining $1 to $2 a share and gains by high-flying issues running up to $5. Some profit-taking late in the day cut the gains.

Some brokers described the rally as a technical snapback from the sharp losses of Monday and last week.

Mao Grooms Albanian Premier Shehu

Picture Shows Mao Not Dead

TOKYO (UPI)—China broadcast a photograph of a smiling Mao Tse-tung it said was taken today as he bade farewell to a visiting Albanian delegation. The public appearance, his first in six months, ended speculation Mao was seriously ill or dead.

The New China news agency broadcast an earlier report that Mao had met the Albanians and followed this up with a radio photograph showing Mao in the traditional high collared Chinese uniform standing straight alongside his guest, Premier Mehmet Shehu of Albania.

Peking was hazy on details of Mao's public appearance but it appeared to be at a farewell banquet for the Albanians. Another New China broadcast said Premier Chou En-lai spoke today at a "farewell banquet" for the visitors.

CHINESE SEE A-BOMB BAN

(See also page 3)

PEKING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai pledged today that China never will use nuclear weapons to blackmail others.

China's purpose in developing nuclear weapons was defence and its ultimate aim was the elimination of nuclear weapons, he told a farewell banquet for a visiting Albanian government delegation, the New China news agency reported.

He said his efforts to ban atomic weapons had been blocked by the U.S. and Russia.

The Chinese leader gave no details about the explosion Monday of China's third nuclear device, which the Chinese said contained thermonuclear material.

He said the test was an important contribution to China's security and world peace.

Chou declared: "China is developing nuclear weapons, but she absolutely will not place blind faith in them."

"We will never submit to the nuclear blackmail of anyone, nor will we ever use nuclear weapons to blackmail others."

He said China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons.

He accused both the Soviet Union and the United States of nuclear blackmail.

He attacked the Soviet "revisionist" leaders for seeking a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons in collusion with U.S. imperialism.

He said the aim of Russia and the U.S. was to maintain their nuclear monopoly, intimidate oppressed countries and peoples and realize their dream of world domination through Soviet-U.S. collaboration.

"In these circumstances, China cannot but conduct necessary and limited nuclear tests to develop nuclear weapons," he said.

CAIRO CHEERS U.S.S.R. PREMIER

CAIRO (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived here today to begin an eight-day official visit aimed at bolstering Russian influence in the troubled Middle East and received a tumultuous welcome from thousands of cheering Egyptians.

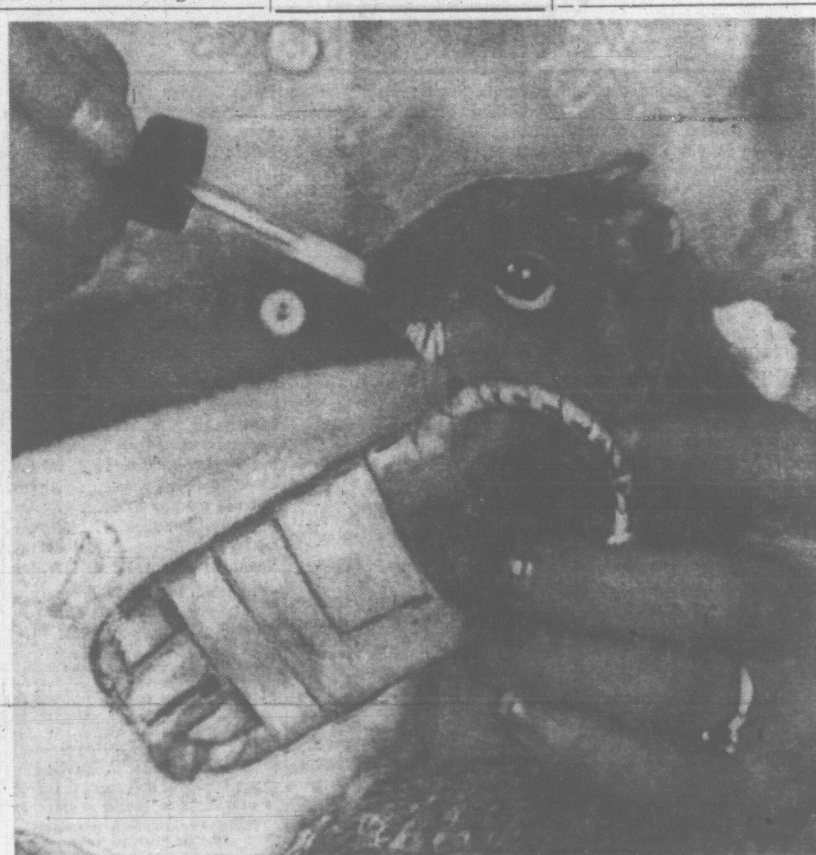

Placard-waving crowds gave Kosygin a wild ovation as he stepped from his IL 18 turboprop airliner and was greeted by President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The Soviet leader was accompanied by a 30-member Russian delegation.

Liner Still Aground

FLUSHING, The Netherlands (Reuters)—Six tugs today failed in a first attempt to refloat the 27,002-ton liner Capetown Castle which ran aground on a sandbank near here early today.

The Dutch agent of the Union Castle Line said there were 250 passengers and 300 crew members aboard. No injuries were reported.

AMERICANS PLANNING TO STALL TALKS?

MPs Back Salmon Retaliation Against U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—The common fisheries committee, today endorsed the Canadian government's threat of retaliation not to withdraw from high seas netting operations that take Canadian salmon.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the firm stand taken by the Canadian delegation at meetings here last month merits the strongest support.

"The Americans told us to go to blazes when we first asked them to withdraw their netting limits," he said.

Dr. R. R. Logie, assistant deputy fisheries minister, told the committee that the Canadian and American delegations have agreed to another meeting in Seattle May 17 to renegotiate the netting limits originally agreed on in 1957.

He said there has been no official indication that the U.S. government will seek to postpone or adjourn the meeting.

Mr. Howard, however, repeated a charge that Alaskan fishing interests are putting pressure to have the meeting delayed until the salmon season has ended.

"The Americans have been dragging their feet on this issue for years," he added.

The dispute centres on the interception of Canadian-bound salmon by U.S. netting along the Alaskan Panhandle. The limits of U.S. netting are three miles farther to sea than the line agreed upon by the two countries in 1957.

Canada has threatened to let its fishermen push their netting lines farther to sea and intercept salmon bound for Alaskan rivers. Object of the original agreement was to discourage high seas netting.

The committee approved, in amended form, a motion submitted by Mr. Howard which backed the Canadian stand on the issue.

But it dropped a clause that criticized U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson for threatening to curtail the import of Canadian fishing products over a dispute about sharing the Fraser River salmon catch.

David Groos (L—Victoria, B.C.) said the clause would give the senator's remarks an aura of respectability they do not deserve.

Mr. Howard agreed.

Chairman Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said he suspects that the senator's threat was made chiefly to win attention in his home state of Washington.

After all this, Canada's goin' t' hev t' quietest, straight-an'-narrow-path-followin' bunch of politicians y' ever saw.

Wall St. Rebounds From Sharp Decline

Rebounding New York market weathered some profit-taking and held on to the major part of its gains in heavy late afternoon trading.

The glamor stocks, pounded down unmercifully in the last two weeks of selling, recovered 1 to 5 points.

Blue chips in most of the important groups moved higher as "bargain hunters" bought at relatively cheap prices. Brokers called it "a technical recovery from an oversold condition."

The Toronto market started to recover in modest fashion after four days of losses.

AT NEW YORK IBM, Xerox and Eastern Air Lines were up about 5. Anaconda climbed a point.

General Motors recovered a full point from its recent low and held it. Ford wiped out a gain and traded unchanged.

Steelmakers maintained a string of fractional advances.

One evening last week, I came up from working on a not-quite-finished dog run to take a phone call. The voice at the other end belonged to a young man by the name of Roger Hunter, who asked me to play master of ceremonies at a poetry reading.

"Things are getting sort of desperate," he explained. "We've tried everyone, but they've all got something on for Friday night."

We did too, but it wasn't important, so after warning Mr. Hunter what might be expected of his desperation choice, I took on the job.

Next morning, which happened to be rainy, a delegation called on me. Its members were in their late teens or early twenties. Two carried furred black umbrellas, one of which appeared to have large white letters printed on its fabric.

The group included a pleasant-looking Mod two years out from England, who carried an elegant silver-headed cane and wore a yellow flower in the buttonhole of his black coat; Mr. Hunter in a leather jacket; and the poet, Cyril McColgan, whose first book of verse is now on sale at a dollar in several Greater Victoria book stores.

Since a newsroom in forenoon space is a poor place for conversation, we took ourselves off in the rain to a nearby coffee shop. Whether out of solicitude or because he feared to lose the last chance of enmeshing a cold, the boy with the white-lettered umbrella insisted on holding it unfurled over my head.

Poets—the authentic ones—rarely look or act the part. Mr. McColgan, whose first published work is excitingly good, let his friends do most of the talking.

He is a close-coupled boy of 19, with an observer's eyes in a snub-nosed action face. His parents fetched him to Victoria as a child from Londonderry, Ireland, and he has been writing verse since he was seven years old.

A severe self-critic, he hurls much of his work, and would have destroyed the poems now between covers had not his friends persuaded him otherwise. Appropriately, his thin, red-covered book is titled "A Spoonful of Ashes."

The reading was to highlight the first night of a week-long show by young local artists at Pandora's Box, a little old white house at 750 Pandora street, where weaver and bead expert Berta Roth has given a new lease on life as a commercial art gallery.

Although we arrived early, about 30 students and working boys and girls were already viewing the paintings and handicraft pieces on display.

The gallery still carried a faint scent of charred wood from a recent fire which gutted a back room and knocked out the electricity. Old-fashioned kerosene lamps sat on tables. By the light of two of these, the oboe and bass guitar players who were to furnish background music helped Britten Haggerty, who was to give the reading, in his search for a missing amplifier part. Others ran a power line from a next door garage.

By the time the lost part was found, the audience numbered about 80, of whom all but a handful were in or not far out of their teens. Some drank pop from glasses ranged on a table. A very few smoked. All were casually dressed in the manner of their generation.

I located the poet, but he shrank from appearing before the crowd, and proceeded to lose himself. By this time, though, the missing amplifier part had been recovered, and we could get under way.

The music commenced. Britten Haggerty, a boy who wears his hair long, seated himself in a kitchen chair on the end platform. In a low, clear voice, he began to read. His listeners were very quiet—much more so than the average older group—and they seemed to appreciate what they heard.

So did I. Poet McColgan, a young man of his times, has a long, and probably a hard road ahead of him. But here is a promising new talent, and I think he is lucky in his friends.

SURVEYS HAVE BEEN COMPLETED for widening of the Thetis Hill section of Trans-Canada Highway to three lanes this summer. Roadway will be widened to full 36 feet plus shoulders to provide an extra northbound lane for slow traffic up the hill and through the rock cut at its crest. Aerial photo shows the bottleneck which has not been relieved despite a temporary widening by black-topping the old shoulder to provide an eight-foot lane. Meanwhile, highway engineers are still analyzing preliminary surveys for widening of the road to a four-lane route from the Thetis overpass south to Douglas Street but no work has been set. Worker Import From Jamaica Not B.C. Idea

Neither the provincial government nor the B.C. Federation of Agriculture has asked for import of Jamaican harvest workers, spokesmen said today.

C. E. S. Walls, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said the Canadian Federation of Agriculture made a holding request to the federal government to include B.C. in its arrangements for importing "gang labor."

The federal government last week revealed it was working out a formula for bringing West Indians to Ontario, Alberta and B.C. as harvest help.

But B.C. Agriculture Minister Frank Richter denied that his department has asked for Jamaicans. He said the provincial government believes there is sufficient unemployed manpower in Canada to meet needs if help is provided in moving workers from one part of the country to another.

Mr. Walls said his organization agrees with this view but is anxious that there be an assurance an acute shortage of picker help facing the Okanagan area be met one way or another.

He said the federal government was in the process of establishing contract conditions for importing Jamaican workers to Ontario farms and "they were requested to keep the door open in regard to these contracts so that it would be available to B.C. if it was needed."

"The request was made by our national organization, not by us or by the provincial government," Mr. Walls said.

Cheque Charges Admitted by Man

A man who used worthless cheques to get cash and building supplies pleaded guilty in central court today to two charges of false pretences.

Gordon Ray McKay, 2265 Florence Lake Road, was remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

Court was told he received cash and goods totalling $40 from Langford Building Supplies, 940 Goldstream Ave., when he presented cheques April 10 and 18.

3-Month Term

A man who wandered into the city police station early today was later jailed three months for vagrancy.

Stanley Lien pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court.

Gaglardi in Dark On Freeway Plan

Decision on the final location of a proposed north-south freeway in Greater Victoria may take months or even longer.

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said this morning he has no clue where the freeway will finally run or how long it will be before the location is chosen.

The metropolitan traffic study one year ago recommended one location and this has been under study by the highways department.

A government official said some additional data has been received by the Toronto research company that made the report but more was to come.

Mr. Gaglardi said when his department comes to him with a recommendation, "we will go from there."

Concern has been expressed by Saanich planner Tom Loney on the proposed route of the freeway near the municipal hall.

The report recommended a Patricia Bay Freeway roughly paralleling the existing road. This would be joined near McKenzie Avenue by the Trans-Canada, rerouted north-eastwards from Portage Inlet.

The combined freeway would

Tugboat Races May Be Revived For Pageant

A chance to restore to Victoria tugboat races of steamship days is being investigated by Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Edward A. MacFayden told a tourist trade group meeting Monday a suggested marine pageant should have as a main feature a tugboat race which would draw ships to Victoria from distant points.

There hasn't been one here in about 35 years.

Pat Frumuto told the group that if such races are revived they could "eclipse the Swifts (yacht) race as far as being a thrilling spectator sport."

Two Injured In Collision

A collision at Yates and Quadra Monday night sent two drivers to hospital.

Patrick Murphy, 31, of 1003 Richmond, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with undetermined injuries, and Albert Miller, 58, of 1439 Myrtle, was released after a check-up.

Police said their cars were badly damaged.

LONEY OPPOSED

Mr. Loney said he is opposed to this and wants the freeway to end at McKenzie, to save it chopping into a growing commercial area.

"What worries me is that the freeway question poses two distinctly different sets of circumstances," he said.

"If the freeway goes in as proposed then we'll plan according to one set. But if it doesn't then the entire situation is changed as far as zoning is concerned."

"It is impossible to formulate one plan to govern both situations."

City Yard Wins $930,000 Tug Contract

A $930,000 contract to build two 1200 h.p. tugs for Island Tug and Barge Ltd. has been awarded to McKay-Cormack Ltd. shipyard.

ITB president Arthur Elworthy today said the $5-foot vessels of steel construction have been ordered for delivery next February and March.

He said the capital expansion of his company is combined with a replacement program for the older wooden-hulled vessels and extends to scows.

Three new chip scows are built and being delivered by Yarrows Ltd. and three more by Bel-Aire Shipyard Ltd., of Vancouver, at a total cost of nearly $800,000.

At the same time, Island Tug is completing the $650,000 Island Warrior from a hull purchased in the east.

MORE TO COME

Mr. Elworthy said further expansion is also planned to start in the current fiscal year.

Asked whether this conflicts with the federal government's suggested capital expansion cut-back, Mr. Elworthy said the new work is justified by the growth of business, which the new vessels are being built to handle.

RIDER UNHURT

Horse, Truck In Mishaps

An over-zealous horse and an over-zealous dump truck figured in two Saanich accidents Monday.

The horse, carrying 13-year-old Brenda Quan, 5108 Pat Bay Highway, bolted from a field at Beaver Lake Park into the path of a car on the Pat Bay Highway.

Both rider and horse escaped serious injury in the resulting collision. But both were shaken up along with the driver of the car, Paul M. Beere, 746 Gorge Road West.

There were no injuries in the dump-truck mishap either, but an estimated $1,500 damage was done to homes and wiring in the Blair Avenue-Birchwood area off Shelbourne Street.

Driver Derril Brown, 2017 Fernwood, was dumping a load of gravel when the box on the big truck caught overhead power and telephone wiring.

A lamp standard toppled and two power poles damaged. Power to three houses was cut off and plaster was pulled from the walls of houses where lines were attached.

Saanich Ready To Take Over 3 City Parks

Improvement Promised By Curtis

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich should acquire the three city-owned park properties within the municipality, Reeve Hugh Curtis said today.

He told a noon luncheon meeting of the Victoria Electric Club at the Crest Motel:

"Until as recently as several years ago, Saanich park development and the supervisors and crews necessary to carry out such work were virtually non-existent."

"Today, however, sees a very different situation. We have an excellent parks superintendent and we have managed to build up a capable and efficient parks work force."

IMPROVEMENTS SALE

"Saanich feels quite certain that it could carry on from this point and bring about major improvements at all three sites."

"From the city's point of view I trust this makes sense. As long as these lands are secure for parks use it is realistic for the municipality in which they are located to undertake their improvement."

The three city-owned parks in Saanich are Mount Douglas, Gorge Park and Elk-Beaver Lake.

For many years, maintenance and development has come under the Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee.

"While I am sure the joint committee system has worked well in the past, I'm of the personal opinion that the time has now arrived when Saanich should acquire all three park properties from the city."

COMPLICATED

He said the recent water rights hassle over Elk-Beaver Lake, involving Victoria, Central Saanich and the provincial government, has complicated previous discussions between Saanich and Victoria.

Tentative agreement had been reached for the city to dedicate the area as a park with Saanich undertaking park development.

Reeve Curtis said because of recent developments, "I'm afraid... that it will be some considerable time before we can carry out plans to a satisfactory conclusion."

"The only assurance I can offer is that we shall pursue our plan."

He added that the city has received a Saanich proposal to purchase the nine-acre Gorge Park.

NOMINAL SUM SET

"And since Victoria didn't pay anything for Mount Douglas Park in the first place, I'm rather hopeful this transaction can be concluded on the usual nominal sum basis."

On another subject, the reeve doubted Saanich will pursue municipally-owned or developed swimming pools in the immediate future following ratepayer rejection last December.

However, there did appear to be "considerable" support for ice surfaces in Saanich and this will be given "serious consideration" in the next few months.

Girl's Big Hope Finds Family With Big Hearts

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A Japanese girl who wrote to the Victoria Times asking if someone would give her an opportunity to "experience your city" has been offered a home in Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, 1071 Gosper Crescent, responded.

And Masako Endo, a 19-year-old girl living at 59 Takora-cho, Katsushika-ku, Tokyo, replied that she would "so like" to accept their hospitality.

But it wasn't as easy as that. Mr. Collins had to go through the formalities required by Canadian Immigration. He had to swear an affidavit guaranteeing that Masako Endo would be given a home in Victoria for at least three months.

Mr. Collins swore an affidavit and the top copy was sent to the Canadian Embassy in Tokyo. With it he enclosed a character reference.

The second copy was sent to Masako Endo.

PAY WAY

The stipulation, of course, is that Masako pay her own way to Victoria and, if necessary, her way back home.

"Otherwise, we are prepared to give her a good home," Mr. Collins said. "We are going on vacation to Island early in June and we would be happy to take Masako with us."

"We would like her to be as

Cigarettes, Candy Taken In Break-Ins

Candy, cigarettes and clothing were stolen in three break-ins reported to police today and Monday.

About $10 in coin was missing from Capital City Bowladrome, 966 Yates, after the front door was forced overnight.

The money came from soft drink and cigarette machines and from a cash register which was left open.

A large quantity of candy was taken from the Colt League baseball concession at Topaz Park Monday afternoon.

Ken Harper, 3229 Quadra, told police he saw a group of youths running from the stand at 4:05 p.m.

ICE CREAM PRICES GOING UP

The price of ice cream and ice milk is going up.

Three Vancouver-area dairies have increased their prices two or three cents a pint and consideration is being given by a fourth company.

In Victoria, Island Farms Dairies Co-Op Association said prices are under review and an increase is indicated.

Palm Dairies said there has been "no increase yet."

The three mainland dairies who have raised the prices are Dairyland, Jersey Farms and Palm Dairies. A fourth company, Shirley Farms, was considering an increase.

free as possible to explore other parts of British Columbia. We feel that an appeal of this kind should not be ignored.

'READY TO HELP'

"If the nations of the world are to get to know one another, there should be a free interchange of hospitality. In our small way, we are ready and willing to help."

Mr. and Mrs. Collins have two little girls—Trudi Bell, 7, and Deborah Ann, 5—and they believe the youngsters could learn much from a 19-year-old Japanese girl.

"They might even learn the language," laughed Mr. Collins.

'BIG HOPE'

In her original letter to The Times, part of which, was reprinted, Masako said:

"I am writing to ask a favor of you with a big hope. I am a Japanese girl and 19 years old. I graduated from high school last year and I am employed in a company in Tokyo."

"It has long been my desire one day to travel in countries overseas and understand them better. I don't want to spend my youthful days idly and I want to study, not by textbooks, but actively."

"I am sure we shall be able to help establishing the peace of the world when we try to understand other countries better and to promote friendship among them."

ISLAND COUNTRY

"As you know, Japan is an island country and our manners and customs are much different from others. I suppose there are many people who do not know what Japan is like, and what history and culture we have."

"I will carry some slides and films to introduce Japan, so as to make such people understand Japan rightly."

"I am so interested in your big country and would like to learn about it."

NAVY UNWINDS LONG ENOUGH TO REVEAL SECRET WEAPON

By TERRY IZZARD

The navy's latest secret weapon was revealed for the first time Monday.

The weapon—designed to make Canada's warships entirely self-supporting—was demonstrated aboard destroyer-escort St. Croix.

Fiendishly simple, it proved invaluable in holding the ship together during high explosives tests just completed off California's south coast.

Although the defence department has previously kept mum about "Operation Shoestring," apparently all Canada's fighting ships have been equipped with the device.

Technically speaking, it ties together the loose ends of complex equipment that can so easily jar loose under heavy attack.

In simpler terms, it's a ball of STRING.

But don't laugh! St. Croix's commander, John S. Hertzberg, can vouch for its effectiveness.

It solved numerous knotty problems last Thursday when the ship was subjected to a high-powered underwater blast in U.S. testing grounds off San Diego.

It prevented light fittings jumping from mountings, held breakable crockery in place, secured drawers that would otherwise have fallen out, and stopped the commander's telephone from leaping off its hook.

What it didn't help was the ship's deep freezer which broke down under the force of the blast.

As soon as the ship tied up Monday afternoon, ratings began unloading 2,000 pounds of meat and vegetables which were beginning to thaw out.

Modifications will be carried out to all ships' freezers as a result of the St. Croix's experience.

In addition, the tests—designed to discover flaws in the ship's design—turned up some 200 minor faults.

Oh, yes! About that string. Not a word to anyone—there are spies everywhere.

Civilians Mowed Down
After Blast in Saigon

SAIGON (CP)—Six South Vietnamese civilians were shot and killed in Saigon today when a Viet Cong mine explosion triggered a half-hour barrage of machine-gun fire by American military policemen.

Five of them — four women and a child — were killed in the street along which the shooting took place. Two of the women died when Americans pumped bullets into an open truck carrying dock workers.

The sixth was shot in hospital where he was visiting a friend. Hospital officials said a large number of bullets entered the hospital but no one else was hit.

Twenty-one South Vietnamese and eight Americans were wounded in the barrage.

The incident began when a claymore anti-personnel mine exploded and blew in the glass front of the Suzie Wong tailor store.

A spokesman said a man was seen jumping into a taxi as the mine exploded. An American policeman fired at the taxi, starting a chain reaction of shooting along the street where other Americans gazed U.S. bullets.

One American guard saw a truck moving toward him, carrying a gang of dock workers.

He fired into it, and a jeep-mounted American machine-gun then opened up on the truck.

The truck tried to reverse but was blocked by a U.S. military bus travelling behind it. The machine-gun burst tore into the bus, too, injuring the South Vietnamese driver and at least one American serviceman.

PREGNANT WOMAN SHOT
HUDDLED ON PAVEMENT

SAIGON (AP) — A pregnant South Vietnamese woman described from her hospital bed tonight the terror and confusion she and other civilians experienced when U.S. machine-gun bullets ripped into their truck and left some bleeding in a rain-splattered Saigon street.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Thom, 23, mother of two children, told how she and two dozen other employees of a construction firm were riding to work this morning when a Viet Cong mine exploded and U.S. sentries started shooting.

The truck halted at an intersection near the Brink Hotel, a big U.S. military billet in downtown Saigon, she said.

As the shooting erupted, workers panicked, Mrs. Thom said. Some scrambled from the truck; some ran, others tried to hide beneath the vehicle.

Bullets tore into the metal and bounced off the rain-wet street.

A tracer round hit Mrs. Thom in the side as she huddled on the pavement. She lay there nearly 30 minutes, until an American officer carried her to a doorway. She was taken to hospital later.

GUNS VISIBLE
The woman said she did not see anyone shooting, but did see many American soldiers with guns.

Mrs. Thom was one of 13 South Vietnamese wounded taken to Saigon city hospital.

New Quakes
At Tashkent

MOSCOW (UPI)—A series of earthquakes rocked the ancient city of Tashkent again today, sending residents and tourists running into the streets as houses weakened in a quake exactly two weeks ago came tumbling down.

There were some casualties reported but the accounts gave no precise toll of the injured and made no mention of fatalities.

One of them had been hurt by the mine explosion; the others were hit by bullets.

Mrs. Le Thi Dan, 42, mother of five boys and one girl, said she huddled with several others in the back of the construction workers' truck.

Bullets killed two women alongside her and wounded her three times—in the left ear, behind her right shoulder, and in the lower back.

Le Van Sam, 48, father of eight children, was driving another truck filled with textile workers, when he heard the shooting, he stopped the vehicle three blocks from the scene. As he climbed from the truck cab, he was sent spinning by a bullet that broke his right arm.

A taxi driver, Nguyen Viet Tan, 46, said he heard a blast like thunder and a flash like lightning. Then came more flashes and a bullet ripped through a door of his taxi and into his hip. He drove home operating the gas pedal with his hand, he said.

ON RELATIONSHIP

Lawyers Grill
Former Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—J. L. O'Brien, chief commission counsel, said today at the Munsinger security inquiry that Pierre Sevigny was the fourth male visitor to Gerda Munsinger's apartment on the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960, and that the first three paid a fee.

Mr. Sevigny, former Conservative associate defence minister, said he learned this only recently.

He repeated that the only reason he had seen the German blonde that night was that he had been asked to see her by a mutual friend, Jacqueline DeLorme.

Mr. O'Brien said Mrs. Munsinger "suggested that you come up and continue what you call an intimate relationship."

Mr. Sevigny said he had called her from a restaurant but could not recall the exact conversation.

"She was quite gay on the telephone," Sevigny said. "She said she wanted to see me."

Mr. O'Brien said that when Mrs. Munsinger was supposed to have been destitute she had gone with a man to Western Canada.

He asked whether Mr. Sevigny now knew that Mrs. Munsinger was a prostitute.

Mr. Sevigny replied that information he now has indicates that Mrs. Munsinger resorted to prostitution during her last weeks in Canada "in order to live when her back was to the wall."

He said he didn't know at the time that she was resorting to prostitution.

Mr. O'Brien asked whether Mr. Sevigny now is aware that Mrs. Munsinger took another trip with another man to Switzerland for Christmas.

Jules Dupre, Mr. Sevigny's lawyer, objected that he never saw any such statement in the documents supplied to the commission nor had he seen anything to show that Mrs. Munsinger actually took the western trip. The subject was dropped there.

Didn't Deny Physical Relationship

In earlier testimony, Mr. Sevigny said he fell asleep in Mrs. Munsinger's apartment early the morning of Nov. 27, 1960, and left to take the train to Ottawa upon awakening.

He said he never denied at a December, 1960, interview with then prime minister Diefenbaker "that I had had a physical relationship" with Mrs. Munsinger.

He testified that the interview, at which former justice minister Davie Fulton was present, never got into the question of whether he had an illicit sexual relationship.

The German blonde, now living in Munich, has been described in RCMP reports as having been a security risk, a common prostitute and the mistress of Mr. Sevigny.

RCMP reports to Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker had implied "I'd been intimate with her," said the former associate defence minister.

Under cross-examination by Jack Campbell, counsel for Justice Minister Cardin, Mr. Sevigny said he understood that to mean "That we had been close... as close as a man can be to a woman."

Mr. Campbell asked whether that carried the implication of sexual relations.

"I suppose it had," Mr. Sevigny said.

He maintained that he told Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker that the situation between him and Mrs. Munsinger was not such as the RCMP described.

Mr. Campbell said Mr. Fulton had testified that Mr. Sevigny denied any improper relationship.

"That is right, I denied it," said Mr. Sevigny.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, presiding at the inquiry, said Mr. Fulton had told the inquiry that Mr. Sevigny denied having sexual relations.

FLUSHING, The Netherlands (Reuters) — Five tugs today pulled the British passenger ship Capetown Castle clear of the sandbank on which it went aground early in the day.

The 27,000-ton Union Castle vessel had 250 passengers and 300 crew on board when it ran onto the sandbank.

Secret Summit
Called by Reds

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev flew secretly to Bucharest today accompanied by a Soviet specialist on Chinese affairs.

There was a strong possibility Brezhnev would meet with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in the Romanian capital, reliable sources said.

Word of Brezhnev's secret mission leaked out as Romanian sources in Belgrade revealed that Chou also was going to Bucharest "in the next few days." But while Soviet officials would not admit Brezhnev's departure, other sources said the Kremlin chief left Moscow early this morning.

Reliable Communist sources said Brezhnev was accompanied by Konstantin Ruskov, identified as a leading Chinese affairs expert.

Ruskov accompanied politburo member Alexander Sholep to Hanoi last January and met Chou when the Peking leader visited Moscow in 1964.

Ruskov is a former ambassador to Mongolia and is a Soviet liaison with all communist bloc countries.

The sources said Brezhnev planned to spend two or three days in Bucharest.

A-BOMB BAN

(See also page 3)

PEKING (Reuters) — Premier Chou En-lai pledged today that China never will use nuclear weapons to blackmail others.

China's purpose in developing nuclear weapons was defence and its ultimate aim was the elimination of nuclear weapons, he told a farewell banquet for a visiting Albanian government delegation, the New China news agency reported.

He said his efforts to ban atomic weapons had been blocked by the U.S. and Russia.

The Chinese leader gave no details about the explosion Monday of China's third nuclear device, which the Chinese said contained thermonuclear material.

He said the test was an important contribution to China's security and world peace.

Chou declared: "China is developing nuclear weapons, but she absolutely will not place blind faith in them."

"We will never submit to the nuclear blackmail of anyone, nor will we ever use nuclear weapons to blackmail others."

He said China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons.

NOT JUST 'AFFAIR'

She made it clear to the officers that her relations with the cabinet minister "were not just an affair" but that she would marry him if it were possible for him to obtain a divorce.

The police report was given out to reporters at the judicial inquiry into the Munsinger affair—Canada's celebrated "Little Profumo Scandal"—in which it has been charged that national security was risked in the liaisons Mrs. Munsinger had with "ministers" ... plural of the Diefenbaker cabinet.

The report said Mrs. Munsinger admitted receiving financial assistance from Sevigny and another source, said Sevigny gave her $125 a month for rental of her apartment.

The summary of the police files said a report of the security branch of the RCMP stated that Mrs. Munsinger was actively engaged in prostitution in Montreal.

"Her charges ran from $15 to $20 per person and she often had several customers per day," the report said.

The inquiry has been adjourned until May 18.

DIEF DENOUNCES CHANGES

Cabinet Reorganization 'Payoff' to Quebec Grits

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson reorganized the government departments in order to pay off political debts. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker charged in the Commons Monday.

He tore into the proposed new setup of the cabinet during the debate on a resolution which preceded first reading of the government reorganization bill.

Established five reorganized departments, adds to a sixth, and creates a new portfolio. It received first reading Monday night after a five-hour debate.

Mr. Pearson pointed out that it was the most extensive change in the administrative organization of the government to be made in peacetime.

He had announced the major shuffle of his cabinet coupled with the reorganization of government departments last December. Ministers with staffs have been anxiously waiting for the new setup to be confirmed by Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker denounced the reorganization. He accused the prime minister of making sweeping changes in order to placate French-Canadian demands that Quebec Liberals be given important portfolios in the government.

'NEW GUARD'
The Opposition leader cited as examples the "new-guard" Liberals from Quebec, Jean Marchand and Jean-Luc Pepin.

Mr. Marchand becomes minister of manpower and Mr. Pepin minister of energy, mines and resources under the new legislation. The manpower department will include immigration and important employment operations formerly handled by the department of labor.

Mr. Diefenbaker argued that Mr. Pearson in order to keep French-Canada happy where the Liberals have solid support had to ensure that new French-Canadian ministers got key roles in the cabinet. This had been accomplished by shaking up the government's organization.

'One of Those Things' May Have Saved a Life

A city man waded into Shawnigan Lake Sunday and saved a 10-year-old girl who jumped into water over her head.

J. C. S. Fox, 1857 Fern, termed the rescue "just one of those things."

He saw the unidentified girl get a push away from a wharf in a kayak.

"She couldn't swim and she must have become afraid. She jumped out of the kayak but the water was over her head."

Mr. Fox said he pulled the girl out of five feet of water.

RARE BIRTH AT ZOO

A Pink or Blue Ribbon for Gibbon?

There was a blessed event on Durrance Road Monday but nobody knows whether blue or pink booties are in order.

The new arrival was a gibbon, the kind of long-armed ape that's so good at mimicry. But he, she or it is still too shy to be typed as to sex. The birth took place at Rudy's Pet Park.

The baby, terrified by the outer world, is clinging to its mother as if it was glued to her abdomen.

Zoo owner Rudy Bauersachs says the mother, Coco, will have to put up with this burden for at least three months, if the baby lives.

HIGH MORTALITY
Infant mortality is high among the gibbon babies when they are in captivity. Mr. Bauersachs says he knows of only one baby gibbon born in a zoo in Canada, which survived. That was at Winnipeg.

Stanley Park Zoo has recorded the births, and subsequent deaths, of two. Zoo officials there said a gibbon reared entirely in captivity would be relatively rare in Canada, but is not uncommon in some other countries.

CRITICAL PERIOD
Mr. Bauersachs said the first week for the baby gibbon is a critical period. But he was heartened today when the infant began to take milk from its mother.

The proud mother is having a life of milk and honey, the main part of her post-natal diet, with portions of bananas, oranges and grapes added to her usual mash and lettuce.

She'll need all her energy because the baby, so far hairless and only eight inches long, will grow quickly and even after he lets go his death grip on his mother, will stay close to her for at least six months of his 25-year life span. The parents are only seven and looking forward to lots of togetherness.

There will be no family portraits for some weeks to come. Mother is trying to keep the baby hidden until it grows some hair and she's sure it's an ape. And the father, Jimmy, is in solitary.

TOO HELPFUL
This isn't because he is liable to hurt the baby. He's very excited about it. But in some zoos fathers have tried to be too helpful, fighting with the mother for the privilege of looking after the offspring. And with all this monkeying around the infant has died of neglect.

Father will have his day later — and some problem. How do you teach your youngster to swing through trees when you've got no tails?

New Seer No Stranger To Gonzales

The new weather forecaster in Victoria won't be new to Gonzales Heights.

A. F. McQuarrie has worked here during past summers on forecasting assignments.

The chief of the Calgary weather station since 1948 will take over from William Mackie, local weatherman for the last 15 years, in July.

Mr. Mackie has been promoted to superintendent of observation services for B.C.

Mr. McQuarrie joined the meteorological service of the federal government in 1941 after graduating from the University of Alberta, his home province.

He served on several RCAF stations on instruction and forecasting duties.

By HUMPHRY DAVY
If today's gardeners are more successful with fruit crops, they should bow in the direction of Ernest E. Hall, a retired Dominion Experimental farm horticulturist living in North Saanich.

Mr. Hall, 76, is the man who found out the best ways of pollinating cherry, apple, peach and pear trees to ensure the fruit would set. This entailed 20 years of research.

He developed new varieties of apples and did extensive research on strawberry culture — especially on varieties best suited to the Saanich Peninsula.

He also introduced to Vancouver Island the thornless loganberry cane now widely grown in Saanich.

Mr. Hall, of 1990 Dean Park, joined the research farm in 1922 when agriculture on the island was a more flourishing industry than now.

FRUIT FARMING
Dairy and fruit farming were the mainstays of the industry and loganberry plantings had reached commercial status.

But it took a long time for logans to reach B.C., said the plant expert who took an active interest in the growth of plantations there.

He recalled that the logan-

Berry plantations gradually spread northward and by 1910 there were a few plantings in the Pacific Northwest. In 1920 they were well established in Saanich.

The yield in 1927 was almost
